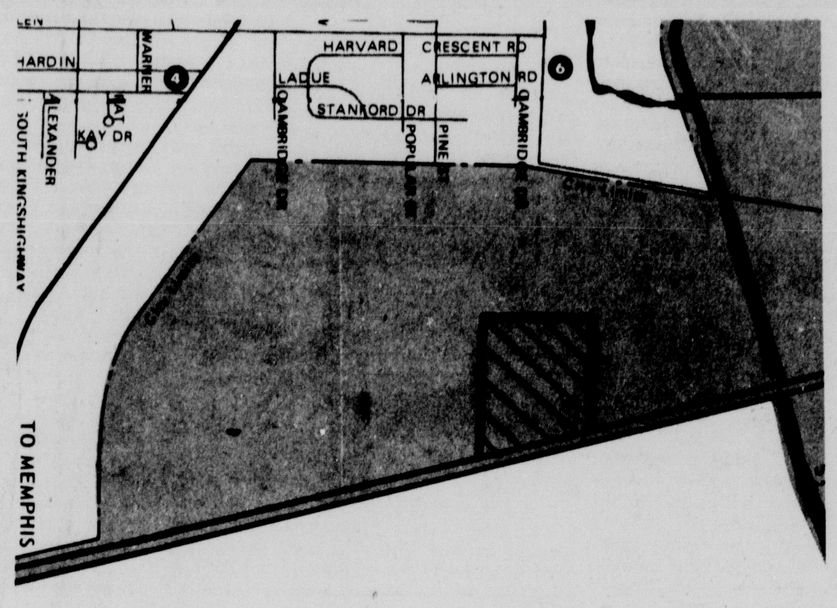
Hockaday Announces Go-Ahead For Troop E Move To Sikeston



HIGHWAY PATROL Troop E headquarters will move from Poplar Bluff to a 20-acre site in Sikeston the patrol announced today. The site, shown here as a shaded rectangle, is located on Highway 60 midway between Holiday Inn and the National Lock Co. plant. The building is expected to take a year to complete after construction begins. Bids may be accepted as early as January, according to patrol officials.

By RON PORTER

Troop E headquarters of the Missouri State Highway Patrol is returning to Sikeston after an absence of 35 years.

The decision to move the headquarters from its current location in Poplar Bluff was announced this morning in Jefferson City by Col. E. I. (Mike) Hockaday, superintendent of the patrol.

It will be located on a 20-acre site adjacent to Highway 60, midway between Holiday Inn and the National Lock Co. plant.

The decision brought immediate criticism from David Pence, the city manager in Poplar Bluff. "We feel they are in error in their decision. This is a proven location and has been for 35 years.

"We are going to take every action possible to reverse the decision," Pence said. He said this might include legal action.

Pence said the Poplar Bluff location offered everything the Sikeston site did. "We're located in a more dense area. We think we need it here."

He refused to comment on the reasons behind the change but noted that Gov. Warren E. Hearnes line vetoed the Poplar Bluff location when he signed the bill authorizing a new patrol headquarters. "The line veto is very questionable," Pence said.

He also noted that both gubernatorial candidates, Democrat Edward L. Dowd and Republican Christopher S. (Kit) Bond, favored retaining the Poplar Bluff site.

Sikeston and Poplar Bluff had been locked in a bidding war over the location of the building since early summer. Other cities bidding, including Cape Girardeau, Bloomfield and Dexter, fell by the wayside in September because the patrol felt their locations were unsuitable.

Hockaday said the Sikeston site was selected over one offered by Poplar Bluff because of availability of city sewer and water facilities, the probability of natural gas service, city fire protection and easy access to state highways and interstate routes 55 and 57.

City officials had also advertised the city's excellent school system, the city airort and Sikeston's potential for growth.

Other considerations, Hockaday said, were that the greater population density of the 14-county Troop E area is in eastern part of the troop area and that traffic volume on the major highways is greater in the eastern area than in the western area.

Hockaday said architects must now fit the building design to the site. It will be at least the first of the year before bids can be accepted, he said. The building will take about one year to construct.

The building will be built at an estimated cost of $693,000, including radio tower.

The Federal Aviation Administration has not yet given the patrol permission to built its tower on the site. The FAA has expressed concern that the tower would interfere with aircraft using Sikeston Memorial Airport.

However, Hockaday said, that would not be a problem. He said the tower can be made shorter, or moved to a remote location.

A $150,000 driver - education training course may be built on the site at a later date, depending on the need for it and the availability of federal funds, Hockaday said.

The course would serve individuals and high schools and colleges. A similar course is now in operation in Warrensburg.

Mayor Frank Ferrell was overjoyed hearing the news this morning.

"It's just great," he said.

Ferrell said he wanted to thank the Robert Matthews family for donating the land and several civic organizations, consulting firms and individuals who worked to bring the patrol to Sikeston.

Captian W. C. Brooks of Poplar Bluff, commander of Troop E, refused to comment on the impending move. He said 28 families would be involved in the shift. He added that the patrol will probably hire additional maintenance people to care for the new building. The estimated

Also atending the rally will be Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III, D-Ill. and Sen. Stuart Symington.

Other politicians expected to attend are Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, Lt. Gov. William Morris, Congressman Bill D. Burlison, Democratic candidate for governor Edward L. Calloway Arrested

Police arrested Willie James Calloway of Dunn Hotel for trespassing, destroying private property and breaking and entering at 2 a.m. today, after he had broken into a cabin at 222 Felker St.

Calloway entered the cabin after kicking in the front door. He told police that he was just looking for someplace to sleep.

The cabin is owned by Pluit Wiggins of 222 Felker.

Other arrests announced today include Edgar Lloyd Grace Jr., 1530 S. Gladys St. careless and imprudent driving; Aron Body, 335 Petty St., peace disturbance; Charles Marion Kaiser, 618 W. North St., public intoxication; and Earl John Miller, Route Three, driving while intoxicated.

Gas Company Warns Users Of Gas Cuts

Interruptible natural gas customers of Associated Natural Gas Co. can expect more interruptions of longer duration this year than last, or in any previous year.

Interruptible customers are those large industrial complexes which are equipped with standby gas and expect these interruptions.

According to Bill Neel, natural gas manager for Sikeston, the increased number of interruptions is based on the number of interruptions in previous winters and information from Texas Eastern Pipe Line Co., supplier for the gas company.

Interruptible customers are urged to be certain their standby fuel tanks are full and that standby equipment is in good working order.

Neel emphasized that curtailment of service will not apply to residential users.

Bombing Halt Over North Announced

LONDON (AP) — U.S. Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird announced today that American warplanes have halted all bombing operations on North Vietnam above the 20th Parallel.

Laird spoke with newsmen after a meeting of the North Atlantic Alliance's Nuclear Planning Group.

He refused to say whether the United States was still flying reconnaissance missions north of the 20th Parallel but he appeared to take one step further an announcement in Washington on Thursday by presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger.

Kissinger told a news conference the United States had informed North Vietnam that "we would stop military activities north of the 20th Parallel."

Laird confirmed that these activities have now stopped.

"We are flying no sorties north of the 20th Parallel," Laird said.

Although American mines in Haiphong harbor are included in the U.S. military activities north of the 20th Parallel, Laird refused to say when these mines might be deactivated or how long the process would take.

Thieu Says No Peace Until He Signs Treaty

SAIGON (AP)— President Nguyen Van Thieu said today that peace will come to Vietnam "when I sign the agreement."

"Any agreements between the United States and the North Vietnamese is their affair," the South Vietnamese leader declared.

"We don't know exactly what agreements have been reached," Thieu told 1,000 city and province councilmen and National Assembly deputies who marched to the presidential palace to demonstrate support for the president.

"But one thing is true," Thieu continued. "We do not agree on anything yet. In this case, the only cease- fire that will take place will comply with our stands. I will present the agreement to you, and I will not sign any agreement in secret."

As Thieu spoke in Vietnamese, his closest adviser, Hoang Duc Nha, told newsmen in English that although "there is no rupture between the United States and South Vietnam, we still have many basic principles to work out."

Commenting on the peace plan which Hanoi revealed Thursday and with which U.S. presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger said Washington was in general agreement, Thieu said:

"We will destroy all of these schemes of the Communists. Peace will come when I sign the agreement. Any signing without my signature is completely without value, even 10 signatures. So any agreement between the United States and the North Vietnamese is their affair.

"The peace agreement that is valid for South Vietnam is the one I sign as representative of the whole people. I can die now or tomorrow, but the position of the people must be continued and finally won."

Thieu outlined a plan which he said was proposed about a month ago calling a national referendum under auspices of the United Nations to determine the makeup of an election commission that would supervise new elections for president and other offices.

Thieu called the plan "a generous offer" but said the Viet Cong turned it down.

Danforth Calls Dowd Ads 'Cheap, Untrue'

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth says Edward L. Dowd's political advertisements are "cheap, dirty and untrue."

Danforth criticized Democrats in general during a speech Thursday night to about 100 Republican party workers. He said most politicians in Jefferson City represented the worst elements of society.

The attorney general, seeking re-election, said Dowd's radio commercials suggested the Republican candidate for governor, Christopher Bond, has cheated on his state tax returns.

"His character is being assassinated now," Danforth said. "Things are upside down when Kit Bond's past record is used for character assassination."

Speaking of the Democratcontrolled legislature, Danforth said "a lot of them are buffoons. An independent survey has ranked the Missouri Legislature 35th in the nation in effectiveness. I think they were looking at it through rose-colored glasses."

"Government should be made up of the best elements in society," Danforth said. "But in Missouri it has been made up of the worst."

AS OCTOBER WANES

The sun now picks up speed in its trackless journey south, but going faster also are the bonfires of color now enflaming the low and high stretches of the October woodlands.

How many colors, shadings and hues can you count in a coppice of burning maples? Take only the reds, to start at the obvious - there is amber red, bleeding red, barn red, cowhide red, purple-reds, red fox red. Mingled in are the umbers, maroons, siennas and sulfurs, the standby earth colors.

Unlike much else in the glacial silviculture, the colorings of October change quickly; even the same birch or sumac has a stage show that shifts daily. One day yellows get the feature billing, the next day yellow-red, then yellow orange. Many believe they must go deep into the sloped hillsides and shout "ah wilderness!" to catch the full splash of October speciality. It's not necessary. Select one treee, say the friendly neighborhood oak in its second or third growth, and the full fire of autumn can be seen in it. Take even one leaf; everything of October is there, too.

Even with our eyes opened wide to all this and our consciousness opened full to the visual pulls of autumn, even then we see little. Take the common brown-hair rabbit. Whole communities of them are now disappearing before our eyes - rabbits, the same beasts we joke about because they multiply with such speed, are now dividing and splitting with such mystery.

Tell the rabbits until you go hoarse that "this is my land, the title papers are in the county courthouse," and it means nothing to them. Their noses will not cease the twitch, mush less their tails. Despite our ownership boasts and our courthouses, the rabbits know the earth is as much theirs as ours; these and the other animals of innocence just haven't learned about the damnation of fences. Protect the animals from hunters this autumn, St. Francis.

The recreational activities of the summer are beneficial, but it is a pity we waste so much of a child's valuable time by depriving him of structured education for three months and then require him to "catch up" in the fall.

WHEN THE PORK BARREL IS EMPTY

Hamtramck, Michigan, is a small industrial community of 27,000 persons. It is distinctive for one reason. As reported in Newsweek magazine, Hamtramck "... is now the most impoverished city in the nation ..." Its list of creditors is long. It owes a power company $200,000, a telephone company $23,000 and a list of some 385 other local creditors.

The city has revenues of only $4.5 million. It has a debt of some $31,5 million, and "The city's budget is such a wreck that yearly it dips several hundred thousand dollars into the red, and municipal employees ..." go without paychecks. Local taxes are the highest allowed by the state. There is no money for welfare programs. Even essential city services are collasping. The city council and the mayor have been threatened with jail terms if they don't start balancing the budget and paying off the city's bills.

Why is Hamtramck in such dire straights? The answer is simple. According to Newsweek's report, the community has been "bled dry" by patronage and petty graft. A local editor says, ".. that everyone stood around the pork barrel taking things out, but no one remembered to put anything in." With the vision of Hamtramck fresh in mind, the voters and taxpayers in other communities, and the nation at large, should take a second look at the spending records of their elected representatives at every level of government.

Open Meetings For all Public Groups

A state law is being passed at Jefferson City that will require open meetings for all bodies that are elected or appointed to transact the business of the public.

It will apply to the legislature and its committees, to county courts, city councils, school boards and all other boards or committees.

It is a law that is overdue. Too often, im some communities, in counties and at the state level, reporters and the public have been barred from such meetings, with members acting as if matters being decided were their own private business, which of course they are not. Since they are public business, the public has a right to know what is happening, and only by open meetings is this possible.

CITIZEN SOLDIERS

The United States is built on a system of government that draws its strength from a free, self-reliant people and from communities and states that solve their own problems to the extent of their resources. The National Guard is a product of that tradition.

Composed solely of volunteers, the Guard is a military organization that has been in your community probably as long as you can remember. You may know some of its members. Most likely, you have seen them in uniform at their armory or leaving in a convoy of vehicles for field training. These same men work beside you in your community during the week. The distinguishing feature of the National Guard is its dual status as both a federal and state military force. This dual role allows a single group of men and equipment to fulfil two vital taks -- one of national defense and one of assistance during state emergencies.

During an emergency, the National Guard's mission is to protect life and property and to preserve law and order and the public welfare. The National Guard is the only military force immediately available to a community in the event of a flood, earthquake, forest fire or other natural disaster. While many Guard actions to control civil disturbances or riots receive national headlines, Guard activities during natural disasters often go virtually unnoticed. For example, Guardsmen in Oklahoma helped storm - isolated communities by airlifting medical supplies, evacuating injured residents, and also by airdropping some 230 tons of hay to snowbound cattle.

The trained, volunteer citizen - soldiers of the National Guard have been among the first to see action and hold the line during the past generation of national emergencies -- World War II, the Berlin Airlife, Korea and Viet Nam. The nation owes them much.

DEPRECIATION REFORM I LONG OVERDUE—NAM

Far from being a "windfall" for business, the Administration's depreciation reform program is recognition that current depreciation practice is "years out of date" and a serious obstacle to our export trade, the National Association of Manufacturers said.

Citing examples of this effect from the machine tool and other industries, an NAM representative urged immediate and full implementation of the depreciation reform proposals of the Nixon Administration.

In recent testimony presented to the Internal Revenue Service, George H. Kitendaugh, Manager—Tax Accounting, General Electric Company, said that "the decade following the 1962 liberalization of depreciation allowances has witnessed tremendous advances in technology and a quickened pace of economic obsolescence which in themselves fully justify a substantial shortening of 'useful lives' without regard to current economic conditions."

Also, he pointed out that projections of massive revenue losses from adoption of the depreciation program are very misleading because they make no allowance for the increase in productivity and over-all taxable income.

Mr. Kitendaugh stressed that the proposed changes in U. S. depreciation regulations would definitely improve the U. S. position with repsect to our industrialized foreign competitors in recovering the cost of productive investment and laying the groundwork for future gains in productivity.

According to Mr. Kitendaugh, those who complain that the ADR system is not the best form of tax action for supplying a quick stimulus to the economy at this time overlook its most important result—establishing the conditions for sustainable long-term growth without inflation.

A DANGEROUS HANG-UP

An official of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, Mr. Arch N. Booth, has put his finger on one very good reason why the states and the federal government are sinking ever deeper into a morass of debt, taxes and unworkable laws. That reason lies largely with the illogical manner in which the public views the performance of legislative bodies.

As Mr. Booth puts it, "We Americans have a dangerous hand-up when it comes to judging a legislature ... It goes like this: Efficiency is good. Productivity is a sign of efficiency. Therefore, a productive legislature is an efficient legislature ... And how do we measure the 'productivity' of a legislature? By the number of laws it passes, of course ... A legislator who introduces few laws is considered derelict, or worse, ignored."

What politician wants to be a member of a "do -nothing" Congress or legislature. The public has only itself to blame for the thousands and thousands of laws on the statute books that hamstring the efforts of every individual and business in the country. We need more officeholders who will advocate slowing down the law-making production line.

SALT II

Defense experts agree that the treaties negotiated in Phase I of the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks were a disaster for the United States. Now it appears that Phase II will be equally bad.

The Arms Control and Disarmament Agency (ACDA) has prepared and disseminated a series of working papers for the next round of disarmament talks. These can be regarded as authoritative, since the chief of the SALT negotiations is also the chairman of ACDA, and the agency provides the technical data used by negotiators.

These working papers ignore the Jackson amendment to the SALT I treaties urging U.S. negotiators to seek equality with the Soviets in "levels of intercontinental strategic forces." ACDA recommends no attempt to change the imbalance in missile weaponry which now favors the Soviets.

Instead, the report presses for the U.S. to allow the Soviets new advantages in the areas of long- range bombers and multiple warheads. The ACDA bureaucracy also insists that our government surrender its Forward Based Systems, that is, the U.S. aircraft stationed in Germany which are capable of carrying nuclear weapons.

Experts in the field of strategic weaponry have pointed out that SALT I gives the Soviets as much as a 50 per cent advantage in land- based offensive missiles and a similar advantage in sea- based missiles. Now the ACDA is recommending that the remaining areas of U.S. strength be negotiated away.

Instead of consulting ACDA, the Administration should seek advice from military men responsible for defending our country. A nation's defense policy should ensure that nation's survival. The ACDA proposals would seriously jeopardize our security. HLH

Mafia's Golden Arm: U.S. May Defoliate Foreign Poppy Fields To Dam Dope From Factories, and Schools

By Victor Riesel

NEW YORK-- Some of our intelligentsia might call it a "dirty tricks operation" by our intelligence operatives. But it could cleanse the sadly emptying main streets of our suburbs and the main drags of our creepy megalopolises of the muggers and the Mafia.

I refer here to the unreported effort by the White House's Office of Science and Technology and the Agriculture Dept. to develop "herbicidal" chemicals which would kill the poppy which nurtures the opium-- known by the ersatz name of heroin-- which is killing our communities with terror, with the grim addiction of 600,000 men, women and now an escalating number of school children; with the inevitable increase in taxes to support more police, social, medical, and mental health facilities for drug abusers, and with a creaking, ofttimes corrupt, criminal justice system.

It was Myles Ambrose, Special Consultant to the President on Drug Abuse Law Enforcement, talking with me in this lethal, organized crime capital, who disclosed the herbicidal experiments. If successful, said he, these poppy- killing chemicals will be used to wipe out sources of opium wherever they are.

He revealed that target areas exist. "Counteractions" will be taken "even if they involved foreign sovereignty." He disclosed that Burma grows 20 per cent of the world's opium— producing plants. "And we have no leverage on Burma, no foreign aid missions." And there is Turkey.

And thus one of the President's top drug fighters is saying that, with a potential "of 10 million" addicts endangering the U.S., America may well simply defoliate the world's poppy fields with no regard for national boundaries.

Such an anti- opium blitz might cut corners of international diplomacy. But it would cut the sources of narcotics and it might end the quiet hysteria of a people fearing to go out at night.

That terror, mostly, traces right back to the Mafia. There has been too much fiction about ogranized crime's Eastern establishment. Too many profitable novels and films on the underworld families' distaste for opium peddling.

Much of the Middle East— grown "hard stuff" now comes into the U.S. from East Berlin and West Germany as well as France. And much of the Asian heroin comes in by air through the West Coast into the big Eastern cities. And it's the now— coddled Mafia which buys it, cuts it, pushes it.

For this there is no less an authority than one of the most respected police officers in the crime— fighting field--- New York Deputy Police Commissioner For Organized Crime Control William McCarthy. He, along with Ed McLaughlin, general counsel to the New York State Joint Legislative Committee on Crime the work of which could be emulated by every other state legislature, joined Ambrose and myself the other night.

Commissioner McCarthy's special squad was an integral force in the recent dragnet which hit 667 organized crime family members with subpoenas. These were the thugs, the hit men, the fixers, the labor racketeers, the jijackers ad infinitum, whose voice had been heard on bugged electronic tape.

Commissioner McCarthy told me he "would not be at all surprised to see over 300 significant organized crime figures go to jail" as a result of the dragnet spread by 1,200 policemen dispatched by himself and Brooklyn District Attorney Eugene Gold.

"These 300 figures would include representatives from all major crime families we have involved here," said McCarthy.

This could cripple the Eastern Mafia. Already the New England organization has been affected and Ed Harrington, chief of the New England Strike Force Against Organized Crime, said the New York police sweeps could slow down New England mob operations since much of the illegal drugs flow into the Boston— centered area from New York.

Certainly the "bugged" Mafia trailer of the now-notorious Brooklyn junkyard picked up considerable inter-family discussions of multi-million dollar narcotics operations.

"We have never tracked the operations and mechanism of organized crime where narcotics were not involved," says McCarthy. "We have never tracked an organization (organized crime— VR) figure back that we didn't find narcotics connected with organized crime."

McCarthy said that these families were "largely involved" in dope pushing. And thus the nation is "sitting on a bomb that is ready to explode the U.S. as a whole" because, in part, narcotics are being peddled "in widespread fashion" to school children.

And a New York State Narcotic Addiction Control Commission study done as recently as July 1971, virtually unnoticed, shows that McCarthy is not being melodramatic. The commission reveals that in a study of 7.4 million employed persons in this state, use of both legal and illegal drugs is widespread among the labor force.

One key discovery in the study, for example, was that salespeople as a group use more drugs that any other labor force segment. And have a higher heroin— use rate--- with 12,000 of the state's 579,000 sales workers being regular users of heroin. Virtually all were white; 80 per cent were women; and all had taken the narcotic while on the job.

The corrosion of industry is spreading from the schools--- regardless of geographic location or size of the company. The cost in human and financial terms is even more meteoric.

Certainly, instant poppy herbicide is vital.

NEW YORK (AP) — The best amateur actor in the history of the New York City Police Department is doing well as a professional television and movie performer.

"I had to go into the movies to get promoted," said former detective Eddie Egan, who plays a police lieutenant in Paramount's new cnime thriller, "Badge 373."

Eddie, whose real-life exploits were the basis for the award-winning film, "The French Connection," is the legendary detective who made 8,741 arrests during a 19-year career as a crime-solver.

This amazine total is a record for the Police Department here.

Eddie, a maverick detective sometimes in trouble with his superiors because of his unorthodox methods, retired last year because he was "tired of paper work" and because he had always yearned for an acting career.

He feels he has smoothed out his quarrels with the Police Department. He has his badge, and is still permitted to wear strapped to his right ankle the gun he wore while in service. And, beginning in 1975, he will start receiving annual retirement pay of $11,000, which is 42 per cent of his final salary as a detective.

Defending the brusque tactics he employed while on duty — he wasn't noted for following departmental rules to the letter — Egan remarked:

"An old cop once told [illegible] can get into on this job is by doing the job. I found out myself that when you're arresting 8 to 10 people a day, you become maybe too experienced. You cut the corners too close sometimes to please everybody."

Anyway, Eddie feels his future is pretty bright. He has a contract with Paramount tying him to the production of 13 films for which he has submitted plot outlines. Also in prospect is a television series, tentatively entitled "My Partner and I."

"Hopefully, I'll play myself," said Egan, "but that's being negotiated."

There are sound reasons for Eddie's optimism. He has already played six professional roles, and behind him lie innumerable real life roles while he was a detective, in some of which his own safety was at stake.

Egan, now 42, stands 6 feet 1, weighs 225 pounds, has wavy brown hair and intense blue eyes, and looks like a retired pro football fullback. He said there was considerable difference between acting for the Police Department and for Hollywood.

"The pay is nicer now, but acting is literally a matter of survival when I was a detective. In some places, if they knew you were a cop, you'd end up with too many holes in your head.

"I think that I played everything but a midget. At different times I was disguised as a blind beggar, a bumb, a priest, a doctor, a bank teller, a college coach, a movie producer and a hospital patient."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON-- President Nixon's aides, responding to charges that a Republican sabotage squad had damaged the Democratic campaign, claimed the Democrats had pulled similar dirty tricks.

We have just concluded an intensive investigation of George McGovern's undercover operations. We found one crack investigator on the payroll, Walter Sheridan, who was hired to find out the extend of the Republican espionage and sabotage. He also investigated some of the Democrats for Nixon and confirmed McGovern's suspicion that they had usually voted for Republican candidates in the past.

It was also Sheridan who uncovered the fact that soybean tycoon Dwayne Andreas, who contributed $25,000 of the money used to finance the Watergate caper, had received a valuable bank charter from the Nixon administration.

A separate research crew, headed by Ted Van Dyk, dug into the backgrounds of such Nixon cronies as Bebe Rebozo, Elmer Bobst and Clement Stone. The Democratic researchers also searched the public records for information about the President's personal finances. They checked, too, whether big Republican contributors had received any antitrust settlements, price increases or other federal favors.

Van Dyk's volunteers confined their efforts, however, strictly to research. They did no investigating beyond scouring the newspapers and examining public documents. When they came up with facts that might embarrass the President, they attempted to plant the information with reporters.

Before the Democratic convention, we also learned, McGovern compiled personal information on just about every delegate. These individual files were assembled in a computer data bank, although McGovern had denounced the use of computers to keep tabs on people. He had spoken out against the "pervasive power of computer data banks.

--Computerized Profiles--

We have obtained a confidentail printout on the computerized profiles prepared by McGovern's staff under the direction of Rick Stearns. At the press of a button, campaign aides could determine any delegate's name, address, telephone number, spouse, age, sex, race, education, occupation, religion and military service-- not to mention his political leanings, personal "interests" and stand on the issues.

The computer instantly divulged, for example, that Raul Castro, a Tucson, Ariz., delegate, was pledged to Sen. Ed Muskie, but preferred Sen. Hubert Humphrey; or that James M. Fitzgerald, a Hartford, Conn., banker, disagreed with McGovern on economic policy; or that Christine Sarcone, an 18- year-old Des Moines high school student, was a strong Muskie delegate; or that Martin D. Dubin, a DeKalb, Ill., college teacher was interested in deep discussions of America's world role; or that Victor Miller, a Florence, Ky., insurance man, was active in the American Legion and "opposes GM (George McGovern's) position on Vietnam"; or that Vermont's former governor Philip Hoff was a World War II Navy veteran who is opposed to the Vietnam war.

During the primaries, McGovern used the fun- loving political prankster Dick Tuck to play a few harmless tricks on Democratic rival Ed Muskie. Those who attended a Muskie coffee klatch in New Hampshire for example, found McGovern stickers pasted to the bottoms of their coffee cups after they had drained the coffee.

But McGovern has refused to allow his supporters to engage in sabotage against the President. Even Tuck's practical jokes, which have been a bane to Nixon throughout his public life, have been ruled out.

When the President hobnobbed with wealthy Democrats for Nixon at John Connally's ranch in Texas, Tuck wanted to drive up in an armored truck followed by a laundry truck with Mexican license plates. Tuck thought this would be a clever way to dramatize that money for the Watergate affair had been raised in Texas and laundered through a Mexico City bank account. But McGovern aides said no and Tuck was obliged to give up his political pranks for the 1972 season.

In sum, we found that McGovern's undercover operation doesn't compare to the systematic sabotage, wiretapping and espionage conducted by President Nixon's campaign aides.

--Vietnam Showdown--

Communist cadres in South Vietnam, apparently, are all set to shift from military to political tactics.

We quoted from secret intelligence reports several weeks ago that the cadres had been advised of the possibility of a cease- fire and had been instructed to get ready for the political struggle.

Their aim during the cease-fire will be to gain control of the governmental machinery from Saigon down to the village level.

Although President Nixon wouldn't go so far as to grant the Communists equal authority with Saigon in ruling South Vietnam, he agreed that the Communists should have an equal voice in arranging and supervising an election. He also conceded that the Communists should be free to run for office.

Clearly, the Communists intend to use their dedicated and disciplined cadres to see that the anticipated election turns out favorably for them.

The cease— fire reports, meanwhile, have backfired against the South Vietnamese on the battlefield. The U.S. command in Saigon has reported to the Pentagon that many South Vietnamese units have virtually stopped fighting. Aware that a cease- fire may be imminent, they apparently don't want to be the last to die in the war.

The Communists, in contrast, have become more aggressive. They are fighting to improve their battlefield position in anticipation, presumably, of a standstill cease- fire.

Small Communist units are also reported infiltrating into the Saigon area where they appear to be preparing for hit— and— run action. The estimate is that, in case the cease- fire falls through, the Communists may attempt a dramatic, Tetstyle attack upon Saigon itself.

AS OCTOBER WANES

The sun now picks up speed in its trackless journey south, but going faster also are the bonfires of color now enflaming the low and high stretches of the October woodlands.

How many colors, shadings and hues can you count in a coppice of burning maples? Take only the reds, to start at the obvious - there is amber red, bleeding red, barn red, cowhide red, purple-reds, red fox red. Mingled in are the umbers, maroons, siennas and sulfurs, the standby earth colors.

Unlike much else in the glacial silviculture, the colorings of October change quickly; even the same birch or sumac has a stage show that shifts daily. One day yellows get the feature billing, the next day yellow-red, then yellow orange. Many believe they must go deep into the sloped hillsides and shout "ah wilderness!" to catch the full splash of October speciality. It's not necessary. Select one treee, say the friendly neighborhood oak in its second or third growth, and the full fire of autumn can be seen in it. Take even one leaf; everything of October is there, too.

Even with our eyes opened wide to all this and our consciousness opened full to the visual pulls of autumn, even then we see little. Take the common brown-hair rabbit. Whole communities of them are now disappearing before our eyes - rabbits, the same beasts we joke about because they multiply with such speed, are now dividing and splitting with such mystery.

Tell the rabbits until you go hoarse that "this is my land, the title papers are in the county courthouse," and it means nothing to them. Their noses will not cease the twitch, mush less their tails. Despite our ownership boasts and our courthouses, the rabbits know the earth is as much theirs as ours; these and the other animals of innocence just haven't learned about the damnation of fences. Protect the animals from hunters this autumn, St. Francis.

The Field Enterprises Educational Corporation notes in their publication how the year-round school idea is talked about throughout the country. Parents and educators are realizing the summer hiatus (originally necessitated by our agrarian society when children's labor was needed on the farm) is destructive to the mental development of children at a time when our highly industrialized society needs minds that can cope with our changing world. Educators are well afaire that children need up to six weeks after summer vacation to relearn and to return to the educational status they had reached when school ended for the year. The recreational activities of the summer are beneficial, but it is a pity we waste so much of a child's valuable time by depriving him of structured education for three months and then require him to "catch up" in the fall.

WHEN THE PORK BARREL IS EMPTY

Hamtramck, Michigan, is a small industrial community of 27,000 persons. It is distinctive for one reason. As reported in Newsweek magazine, Hamtramck "... is now the most impoverished city in the nation ..." Its list of creditors is long. It owes a power company $200,000, a telephone company $23,000 and a list of some 385 other local creditors.

The city has revenues of only $4.5 million. It has a debt of some $31,5 million, and "The city's budget is such a wreck that yearly it dips several hundred thousand dollars into the red, and municipal employees ..." go without paychecks. Local taxes are the highest allowed by the state. There is no money for welfare programs. Even essential city services are collasping. The city council and the mayor have been threatened with jail terms if they don't start balancing the budget and paying off the city's bills.

Why is Hamtramck in such dire straights? The answer is simple. According to Newsweek's report, the community has been "bled dry" by patronage and petty graft. A local editor says, ".. that everyone stood around the pork barrel taking things out, but no one remembered to put anything in." With the vision of Hamtramck fresh in mind, the voters and taxpayers in other communities, and the nation at large, should take a second look at the spending records of their elected representatives at every level of government.

NEW YORK (AP) — The best amateur actor in the history of the New York City Police Department is doing well as a professional television and movie performer.

"I had to go into the movies to get promoted," said former detective Eddie Egan, who plays a police lieutenant in Paramount's new cnime thriller, "Badge 373."

Eddie, whose real-life exploits were the basis for the award-winning film, "The French Connection," is the legendary detective who made 8,741 arrests during a 19-year career as a crime-solver.

This amazine total is a record for the Police Department here.

Eddie, a maverick detective sometimes in trouble with his superiors because of his unorthodox methods, retired last year because he was "tired of paper work" and because he had always yearned for an acting career.

He feels he has smoothed out his quarrels with the Police Department. He has his badge, and is still permitted to wear strapped to his right ankle the gun he wore while in service. And, beginning in 1975, he will start receiving annual retirement pay of $11,000, which is 42 per cent of his final salary as a detective.

Defending the brusque tactics he employed while on duty — he wasn't noted for following departmental rules to the letter — Egan remarked:

"An old cop once told [illegible] can get into on this job is by doing the job. If I found out myself that when you're arresting 8 to 10 people a day, you become maybe too experienced. You cut the corners too close sometimes to please everybody."

Anyway, Eddie feels his future is pretty bright. He has a contract with Paramount tying him to the production of 13 films for which he has submitted plot outlines. Also in prospect is a television series, tentatively entitled "My Partner and I."

"Hopefully, I'll play myself," said Egan, "but that's being negotiated."

There are sound reasons for Eddie's optimism. He has already played six professional roles, and behind him lie innumerable real life roles while he was a detective, in some of which his own safety was at stake.

Egan, now 42, stands 6 feet 1, weighs 225 pounds, has wavy brown hair and intense blue eyes, and looks like a retired pro football fullback. He said there was considerable difference between acting for the Police Department and for Hollywood.

"The pay is nicer now, but acting is literally a matter of survival when I was a detective. In some places, if they knew you were a cop, you'd end up with too many holes in your head.

"I think that I played everything but a midget. At different times I was disguised as a blind beggar, a bum, a priest, a doctor, a bank teller, a college coach, a movie producer and a hospital patient."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON-- President Nixon's aides, responding to charges that a Republican sabotage squad had damaged the Democratic campaign, claimed the Democrats had pulled similar dirty tricks.

We have just concluded an intensive investigation of George McGovern's undercover operations. We found one crack investigator on the payroll, Walter Sheridan, who was hired to find out the extend of the Republican espionage and sabotage. He also investigated some of the Democrats for Nixon and confirmed McGovern's suspicion that they had usually voted for Republican candidates in the past.

It was also Sheridan who uncovered the fact that soybean tycoon Dwayne Andreas, who contributed $25,000 of the money used to finance the Watergate caper, had received a valuable bank charter from the Nixon administration.

A separate research crew, headed by Ted Van Dyk, dug into the backgrounds of such Nixon cronies as Bebe Rebozo, Elmer Bobst and Clement Stone. The Democratic researchers also searched the public records for information about the President's personal finances. They checked, too, whether big Republican contributors had received any antitrust settlements, price increases or other federal favors.

Van Dyk's volunteers confined their efforts, however, strictly to research. They did no investigating beyond scouring the newspapers and examining public documents. When they came up with facts that might embarrass the President, they attempted to plant the information with reporters.

Before the Democratic convention, we also learned, McGovern compiled personal information on just about every delegate. These individual files were assembled in a computer data bank, although McGovern had denounced the use of computers to keep tabs on people. He had spoken out against the "pervasive power of computer data banks.

--Computerized Profiles--

We have obtained a confidentail printout on the computerized profiles prepared by McGovern's staff under the direction of Rick Stearns. At the press of a button, campaign aides could determine any delegate's name, address, telephone number, spouse, age, sex, race, education, occupation, religion and military service-- not to mention his political leanings, personal "interests" and stand on the issues.

The computer instantly divulged, for example, that Raul Castro, a Tucson, Ariz., delegate, was pledged to Sen. Ed Muskie, but preferred Sen. Hubert Humphrey; or that James M. Fitzgerald, a Hartford, Conn., banker, disagreed with McGovern on economic policy; or that Christine Sarcone, an 18- year-old Des Moines high school student, was a strong Muskie delegate; or that Martin D. Dubin, a DeKalb, Ill., college teacher was interested in deep discussions of America's world role; or that Victor Miller, a Florence, Ky., insurance man, was active in the American Legion and "opposes GM (George McGovern's) position on Vietnam"; or that Vermont's former governor Philip Hoff was a World War II Navy veteran who is opposed to the Vietnam war.

During the primaries, McGovern used the fun- loving political prankster Dick Tuck to play a few harmless tricks on Democratic rival Ed Muskie. Those who attended a Muskie coffee klatch in New Hampshire for example, found McGovern stickers pasted to the bottoms of their coffee cups after they had drained the coffee.

But McGovern has refused to allow his supporters to engage in sabotage against the President. Even Tuck's practical jokes, which have been a bane to Nixon throughout his public life, have been ruled out.

When the President hobnobbed with wealthy Democrats for Nixon at John Connally's ranch in Texas, Tuck wanted to drive up in an armored truck followed by a laundry truck with Mexican license plates. Tuck thought this would be a clever way to dramatize that money for the Watergate affair had been raised in Texas and laundered through a Mexico City bank account. But McGovern aides said no and Tuck was obliged to give up his political pranks for the 1972 season.

In sum, we found that McGovern's undercover operation doesn't compare to the systematic sabotage, wiretapping and espionage conducted by President Nixon's campaign aides.

--Vietnam Showdown--

Communist cadres in South Vietnam, apparently, are all set to shift from military to political tactics.

We quoted from secret intelligence reports several weeks ago that the cadres had been advised of the possibility of a cease- fire and had been instructed to get ready for the political struggle.

Their aim during the cease-fire will be to gain control of the governmental machinery from Saigon down to the village level.

Although President Nixon wouldn't go so far as to grant the Communists equal authority with Saigon in ruling South Vietnam, he agreed that the Communists should have an equal voice in arranging and supervising an election. He also conceded that the Communists should be free to run for office.

Clearly, the Communists intend to use their dedicated and disciplined cadres to see that the anticipated election turns out favorably for them.

The cease— fire reports, meanwhile, have backfired against the South Vietnamese on the battlefield. The U.S. command in Saigon has reported to the Pentagon that many South Vietnamese units have virtually stopped fighting. Aware that a cease- fire may be imminent, they apparently don't want to be the last to die in the war.

The Communists, in contrast, have become more aggressive. They are fighting to improve their battlefield position in anticipation, presumably, of a standstill cease- fire.

Small Communist units are also reported infiltrating into the Saigon area where they appear to be preparing for hit— and— run action. The estimate is that, in case the cease- fire falls through, the Communists may attempt a dramatic, Tetstyle attack upon Saigon itself.

Inside Labor

Mafia's Golden Arm:
U.S. May Defoliate
Foreign Poppy Fields
To Dam Dope From
Factories, and Schools

By Victor Riesel

NEW YORK-- Some of our intelligentsia might call it a "dirty tricks operation" by our intelligence operatives. But it could cleanse the sadly emptying main streets of our suburbs and the main drags of our creepy megalopolises of the muggers and the Mafia.

I refer here to the unreported effort by the White House's Office of Science and Technology and the Agriculture Dept. to develop "herbicidal" chemicals which would kill the poppy which nurtures the opium-- known by the ersatz name of heroin-- which is killing our communities with terror, with the grim addiction of 600,000 men, women and now an escalating number of school children; with the inevitable increase in taxes to support more police, social, medical, and mental health facilities for drug abusers, and with a creaking, ofttimes corrupt, criminal justice system.

It was Myles Ambrose, Special Consultant to the President on Drug Abuse Law Enforcement, talking with me in this lethal, organized crime capital, who disclosed the herbicidal experiments. If successful, said he, these poppy- killing chemicals will be used to wipe out sources of opium wherever they are.

He revealed that target areas exist. "Counteractions" will be taken "even if they involved foreign sovereignty." He disclosed that Burma grows 20 per cent of the world's opium— producing plants. "And we have no leverage on Burma, no foreign aid missions." And there is Turkey.

And thus one of the President's top drug fighters is saying that, with a potential "of 10 million" addicts endangering the U.S., America may well simply defoliate the world's poppy fields with no regard for national boundaries.

Such an anti- opium blitz might cut corners of international diplomacy. But it would cut the sources of narcotics and it might end the quiet hysteria of a people fearing to go out at night.

That terror, mostly, traces right back to the Mafia. There has been too much fiction about ogranized crime's Eastern establishment. Too many profitable novels and films on the underworld families' distaste for opium peddling.

Much of the Middle East— grown "hard stuff" now comes into the U.S. from East Berlin and West Germany as well as France. And much of the Asian heroin comes in by air through the West Coast into the big Eastern cities. And it's the now— coddled Mafia which buys it, cuts it, pushes it.

For this there is no less an authority than one of the most respected police officers in the crime— fighting field--- New York Deputy Police Commissioner For Organized Crime Control William McCarthy. He, along with Ed McLaughlin, general counsel to the New York State Joint Legislative Committee on Crime the work of which could be emulated by every other state legislature, joined Ambrose and myself the other night.

Commissioner McCarthy's special squad was an integral force in the recent dragnet which hit 667 organized crime family members with subpoenas. These were the thugs, the hit men, the fixers, the labor racketeers, the jijackers ad infinitum, whose voice had been heard on bugged electronic tape.

Commissioner McCarthy told me he "would not be at all surprised to see over 300 significant organized crime figures go to jail" as a result of the dragnet spread by 1,200 policemen dispatched by himself and Brooklyn District Attorney Eugene Gold.

"These 300 figures would include representatives from all major crime families we have involved here," said McCarthy.

This could cripple the Eastern Mafia. Already the New England organization has been affected and Ed Harrington, chief of the New England Strike Force Against Organized Crime, said the New York police sweeps could slow down New England mob operations since much of the illegal drugs flow into the Boston— centered area from New York.

Certainly the "bugged" Mafia trailer of the now-notorious Brooklyn junkyard picked up considerable inter-family discussions of multi-million dollar narcotics operations.

"We have never tracked the operations and mechanism of organized crime where narcotics were not involved," says McCarthy. "We have never tracked an organization (organized crime— VR) figure back that we didn't find narcotics connected with organized crime."

McCarthy said that these families were "largely involved" in dope pushing. And thus the nation is "sitting on a bomb that is ready to explode the U.S. as a whole" because, in part, narcotics are being peddled "in widespread fashion" to school children.

And a New York State Narcotic Addiction Control Commission study done as recently as July 1971, virtually unnoticed, shows that McCarthy is not being melodramatic. The commission reveals that in a study of 7.4 million employed persons in this state, use of both legal and illegal drugs is widespread among the labor force.

One key discovery in the study, for example, was that salespeople as a group use more drugs that any other labor force segment. And have a higher heroin— use rate--- with 12,000 of the state's 579,000 sales workers being regular users of heroin. Virtually all were white; 80 per cent were women; and all had taken the narcotic while on the job.

The corrosion of industry is spreading from the schools--- regardless of geographic location or size of the company. The cost in human and financial terms is even more meteoric.

Certainly, instant poppy herbicide is vital.

Nixon Vetos Nine Bills To Prevent Broken Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon announced today he is vetoing nine bills—some of them major—because they would "break the budget" by about $2.75 billiion during the next two years.

The fattest money bill Nixon vetoed would have appropriated $30.5 billion to finance activities of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

He complained that the measure would call for "overspending" of $535 million. Even that sum, he said, "would still amount to pressure for higher taxes."

In a memorandum, Nixon spoke of his determination to hold federal outlays to $250 billion in the fiscal year that began July 1—a ceiling he says must be met if higher taxes are to be avoided.

"If I were to sign these measures into law," said Nixon, "I would, in effect, be making promises that could not be kept—since the funds required to finance the promised services are not available, and would not be available without the higher taxes I have promised to resist."

The President said:

"I believe that political leaders must lay the facts on the line, to talk straight to the people and to deliver on the promises they make to the people."

Some of the other vetoed bills: amendments to the Public Works and Economic Development Act, changes in the Mining and Mineral Policy Act, an airport-developments measure, a flood-control act, pay raises for deputy U.S. marshals, a veterans' health care expansion act, a rehabilitation act and national cemeteries act.

"Each of these measures by itself might seem justifiable or even highly desirable," Nixon said. "But the hard fact is that they cannot be considered by themselves. Each has to be considered in the broader context of the total budget—in terms of of how that total weighs on the taxpayers, and how it affects the struggle to curb rising prices."

With the Labor-HEW veto, Labor-HEW programs can continue until Feb. 28 under a resolution enacted in the final week of the 92nd Congress.

Cline Opposed To Aid For Private Schools

ESSEX — C. F. Cline of Sikeston, Democratic candidate for state representative in the 159th District, stated Thursday night that he is opposed to aiding, assisting or developing any private or parochial schools anywhere in the state at a meeting of the Stoddard County Teachers Association.

The dinner was sponsored by the Richland Community Teachers Association and was open to parents, as well as county teachers.

He also stated he would encourage further advancement and expansion of public schools in the state. He defended the right to have private or parochial schools, but he noted that taxpayers are near "the brink of a taxpayer revolt" and have all of the burdens they can carry with public schools taxes.

Cline discussed the recently authorized Missouri State Public School Finance Study which concerns differences in educational opportunities in different school districts and the need for constant attention to provide a lessening of inequalities.

"Recent court decisions have raised serious questions about administration of the property tax and the distribution of state school funds," said Cline.

The findings and recommendations of the study are to be discussed at a series of meetings to be held in November. Cline reported he would attend the meeting at Sikeston on Nov. 17 and would study the recommendations very carefully before making any major decisions on legislation in the House of Representatives.

In closing, Cline said he is available to listen to the views, suggestions and questions of all constituents.

Dirty Words Aren't Everybody's Bag

Dear Ann Landers: Your answer to "Berkeley Biff" regarding four- letter words was good but you should have hit him harder. Granted, words are only sounds, but by the same token, treaties, and licenses are only scraps of paper. It's what those sounds and scraps of paper MEAN that matters. Most decent people are made uncomfortable by dirty words. Refraining from making people uncomfortable is simply good manners. No one has the right to embarrass others. In Texas a person can get arrested for using foul language in public.

I am 17 years old and proud to say that my father would slap me across the room if he heard me use a filthy word. Some kids my age think I am weird when I tell them to watch their mouths when I'm around, but in my opinion there's a lot more wrong with kids who can't express themselves without talking dirty than with me. If I'm a square, O.K., but I'm proud to be a Texas Baptist.--- Tyler Teen

Dear Ty: I'm a far cry from 17, and I'm no Texas Baptist, but I agree. Shake hands with a square from Iowa who liked your letter.

Dear Ann Landers: My 20- year- old boyfriend, after two years of college, has decided to be a nurse. My parents are shocked. My Dad's comment was, "The kid must be gay." I tried to assure Dad that Gordon is a perfectly normal, healthy, virile guy and his major interest is taking care of sick peole. Dad can't understand why Gordon doesn't go to medical school and become a doctor. But Gordon doesn't want to be a doctor. He prefers the relationship that exists between patient and nurse.

I am considering a career in nursing now that Gordon has talked so much about the satisfactions of caring for the sick. It would be simple to switch since I've had two years of college chemistry, zoology, biological science. But wouldn't it be considered odd if two nurses got married?--- Service Oriented

Dear S.O.: Today nothing is considered odd. Tell your father that many normal males have found a rewarding career in the nursing profession. But I do feel they ought to call male nurses something else.

Dear Ann Landers: This question I want to ask is a highly personal one and I am reluctant to ask anyone we know. It places not only me, but my family in a very unflattering light. Can you help?

In the last month two relatives passed away. Both times we received huge boxes of clothing from the families. First, let me tell you that we are not poverty stricken, although I guess one might say we are probably the least affluent members of the family. Many of the garments were twenty years old and in need of dry- cleaning. Shoes were included, heels run down, holes in the soles, and broken laces. There were several dozen pairs of faded socks, torn pajamas and underwear and shirts with frayed collars, with missing buttons.

Our first inclination was to return the boxes but my husband and I decided that no insult was intended. Those people are just ignorant. We sent the few wearable suits to the dry- cleaners and then to Goodwill Industries. The rest of the clothes we will use as polishing rags.

Now the question: Should we acknowledge receipt of the boxes? If so, what should we say?--- Not THAT Poor in W. Va.

Dear Virginia: Acknowledge the boxes. Say: "Thank you." Period.

Confidential to: Help Needed With Old Mac Donald: Is he the one with the farm? If he is, I hope he has a good crop next season, because from your description he doesn't have anything else going for him.

Talon Fashion Consultant At TG&Y

Miss Marilyn Reed, Talon fashion consultant, was at TG&Y Family Center in Kingsway Plaza Mall today at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. to give demonstrations and lectures about the latest Talon trims and accessories.

Dave Stinson, TG&Y fabric coordinator, was also on hand to give information about the latest fabrics in the store and the proper care of them.

Tonight at 7 o'clock, TG&Y will present its third annual "Sew And Fashion" contest featuring the latest in fashions and fabrics. The contests will be divided into three divisions: first and second- year home economics students and 4-H Club members, advanced home economics students and 4-H members and adults.

Contestants receiving the highest points in each division will be judged for the over- all prize of a portable sewing machine.

Prizes will be given to first and second place winners in each division. Each contestant will also receive a useful sewing notion.

Contestants are from all over the Southeast Missouri area.

Judges will be Mrs. Dolan Rogers of Sikeston; Rebecca Nistendirk of New Madrid, area home economist; Jewel Grady of Bloomfield, clothing and textile economist; and Berta Schuerenberg of Matthews.

Commentator for the evenievent will be Jim Wenneker.

Miss Reed will talk about the new Talon invisible zipper. It has been available in this area since May and has a slimmer pull tab and comes in individual lengths instead of group lengths as in the past. The zipper is simple to use and looks like a seam. Fifty- six per cent of all patterns now signify invisible zipper, she said.

Talon has also introduced a new zipper adhesive as a time saver. To use it, one simply places the zipper on one side and puts the zipper in place on the garment and then sews. The adhesive is gummed on both sides.

Miss Reed also has suggestions for sewing with knits. First, make sure the zipper is preshrunk. to do this, simply dip in hot water and let dry. Also, when sewing with knits, be sure to use polyspun thread because it stretches.

Marilyn Reed

Leads Active Life

By JUDY STRICKLIN

Marilyn Reed, Talon fashion consultant, is both informative and fascinating. She has been with Talon Company for four and one-half years and, in that time, has traveled approximately 300,000 miles.

The home office of the company is in New York, N.Y., but Miss Reed's home is Minneapolis, Minn.

Before becoming a fashion consultant, Miss Reed taught home - economics in Minneapolis. She began her teaching career in Racine, Wis., after she attended and graduated from University of Minnesota and spent one year in England near Scotland teaching needle work and cookery as an exchange teacher.

Miss Reed believes the future of home sewing is fabulous. She thinks sewing and creating interesting wardrobes for all family members is now a way of life for millions.

She appears on TV shows giving sewing demonstrations. Speaking to a group of 800 sewing enthusiasts in North Dakota was the highlight of her career, she says.

Always on the go, Miss Reed has lived in Honolulu, visited behind the Iron Curtain, taught sewing in England where she met the Queen Mother at a garden party at Buckingham Palace. She was active in press headquarters for the Pan-American Games in Winnipeg, Canada, and the Olympic Games in Mexico City.

This weekend, Miss Reed will fly to Canada to participate in a wedding, then back to the U. S. Monday and head south.

TWO BY TWO. Fall's fashion message is coordinate with color. Here, black and yellow window pane, lumberjack and checks all combine to make many different outfits.

Long Has Lead Role

KANSAS CITY — Michael Stewart Long, son of Mrs. Robbie Long, formerly of Sikeston, plays the lead role in "The Shadow of a Gunman", which is now playing at University of Missouri- Kansas City Playhouse.

A Junior in theater at UMKC and graduate of Sikeston High School, Long portrays Donald Davoren, a young Irish poet who does little to squelch rumors of his affiliation with the Irish Republican Army. Written by the Irish playwright Sean O'Casey, the tragicomedy is as topical today as when it was first published in 1926.

Long's other theatrical work at UMKC includes roles in University Playhouse productions of "Romeo and Juliet", "Night Over Taos" and "Beaux Stragegem."

"The Shadow of a Gunman" will be staged at 8:30 tonight and Saturday night.

Talon Fashion Consultant At TG&Y

Miss Marilyn Reed, Talon fashion consultant, was at TG&Y Family Center in Kingsway Plaza Mall today at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. to give demonstrations and lectures about the latest Talon trims and accessories.

Dave Stinson, TG&Y fabric coordinator, was also on hand to give information about the latest fabrics in the store and the proper care of them.

Tonight at 7 o'clock, TG&Y will present its third annual "Sew And Fashion" contest featuring the latest in fashions and fabrics. The contests will be divided into three divisions: first and second- year home economics students and 4-H Club members, advanced home economics students and 4-H members and adults.

Contestants receiving the highest points in each division will be judged for the over- all prize of a portable sewing machine.

Prizes will be given to first and second place winners in each division. Each contestant will also receive a useful sewing notion.

Contestants are from all over the Southeast Missouri area.

Judges will be Mrs. Dolan Rogers of Sikeston; Rebecca Nistendirk of New Madrid, area home economist; Jewel Grady of Bloomfield, clothing and textile economist; and Berta Schuerenberg of Matthews.

Commentator for the evenievent will be Jim Wenneker.

Miss Reed will talk about the new Talon invisible zipper. It has been available in this area since May and has a slimmer pull tab and comes in individual lengths instead of group lengths as in the past. The zipper is simple to use and looks like a seam. Fifty- six per cent of all patterns now signify invisible zipper, she said.

Talon has also introduced a new zipper adhesive as a time saver. To use it, one simply places the zipper on one side and puts the zipper in place on the garment and then sews. The adhesive is gummed on both sides.

Miss Reed also has suggestions for sewing with knits. First, make sure the zipper is preshrunk. to do this, simply dip in hot water and let dry. Also, when sewing with knits, be sure to use polyspun thread because it stretches.

Leads Active Life

By JUDY STRICKLIN

Marilyn Reed, Talon fashion consultant, is both informative and fascinating. She has been with Talon Company for four and one-half years and, in that time, has traveled approximately 300,000 miles.

The home office of the company is in New York, N.Y., but Miss Reed's home is Minneapolis, Minn.

Before becoming a fashion consultant, Miss Reed taught home - economics in Minneapolis. She began her teaching career in Racine, Wis., after she attended and graduated from University of Minnesota and spent one year in England near Scotland teaching needle work and cookery as an exchange teacher.

Miss Reed believes the future of home sewing is fabulous. She thinks sewing and creating interesting wardrobes for all family members is now a way of life for millions.

She appears on TV shows giving sewing demonstrations. Speaking to a group of 800 sewing enthusiasts in North Dakota was the highlight of her career, she says.

Always on the go, Miss Reed has lived in Honolulu, visited behind the Iron Curtain, taught sewing in England where she met the Queen Mother at a garden party at Buckingham Palace. She was active in press headquarters for the Pan-American Games in Winnipeg, Canada, and the Olympic Games in Mexico City.

This weekend, Miss Reed will fly to Canada to participate in a wedding, then back to the U. S. Monday and head south.

TWO BY TWO. Fall's fashion message is coordinate with color. Here, black and yellow window pane, lumberjack and checks all combine to make many different outfits.

American Tourist Arrested; Linked With Nixon Bomb

TEL AVIV (AP) — A 22-yearold American tourist has been arrested for investigation in connection with the murder-bymail bombs addressed to President Nixon, Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Defense, Secretary Melvin R. Laird, the state radio reported today.

The broadcast identified the suspect as Dennis Feinstein and said he came to Israel as a visitor several weeks ago.

Police gave no immediate details of the case.

Israeli explosives experts on Wednesday defused three deadly envelopes addressed to Nixon, Laird and Rogers after they were found in a post office in the Israeli frontier town of Qiryat Shemona near the Lebanese border.

Feinstein was ordered jailed for 15 days by a magistrates court in Safed. He told the court he had nothing to do with the letter bombs, packed in ordinary blue air-mail envelopes and addressed to Washington.

Police told the court the American was picked up by an Israeli soldier in the Lebanese frontier zone "in suspicious circumstances."

The chief spokesman at Israel's national police headquarters said police were making public no details of the case. He declined to give the suspect's home address in the United States.

McGovern Claims Same Peace Terms Now As Four Years Ago

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern is dealing warily with the prospect of a pre-election Vietnam settlement, while contending that President Nixon can get no peace terms now that were not "there for the asking four years ago."

Indeed, McGovern told one campaign rally Thursday that the currently proposed peace terms are little different from those on which the French got out of Indochina 18 years ago.

That, and the vow that he, as president, would force the Saigon government out of the way of an immediate settlement, constitutes the McGovern campaign offensive on the peace issue, one that was the cornerstone of his campaign in the first place.

McGovern said in response to a question that he did not want to describe the settlement drive as timed for election-eve impact.

"Whatever their motives, if this administration can bring off a settlement of this war, they'll have my full support and cooperation in any effort that can lead to peace," he said.

Word from the White House Thursday that "peace is at hand" produced no basic change in the campaign stance McGovern adopted earlier in the week amid initial reports of a possible settlement.

He said then, and he says now, that he is for it, that it should have come years ago, and that the political effect is not important.

"I don't think we ought to be trying to count votes when bodies are involved ....

"There is no evidence that I have yet been able to see that convinces me there is any new circumstance leading to peace now that was not there for the asking four years ago," he told a campaign rally in Sacramento Thursday night. "We can only mourn four more years of war ...."

McGovern said any intransigence on the part of Nguyen Van Thieu, the South Vietnamese president, should be brushed aside.

"He said the other day that he was not going to let us dictate a peace settlement to him," McGovern said. "I say to Gen. Thieu, if I were president of the United States you, Mr. Thieu, would not dictate war to us."

There was no evident atmosphere of political crisis in the McGovern camp, in contrast to that four years ago when Nixon and his strategists were confronted just before the 1968 election with word that then President Lyndon B. Johnson was suspending the bombing of North Vietnam as part of a broadened effort to negotiate peace.

Nixon at that time issued a statement suggesting and then denying that it was a politically inspired move to help the Democrats hold the White House.

Pair Indicted For Forging On Petitions

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Two more persons were indicted Thursday by a circuit court grand jury on charges of helping to forge signatures on petitions of the illfated $730 million transportation bond issue.

One was James E. Meyer, secretary-treasurer of the St. Louis Labor Council, who headed up the drive for signatures. He and Ron Perisho, a computer operator, pleaded not guilty during an arraignment and were released on their own recognizance.

Judge Theodore McMillian set Dec. 11 as a trial date. The indictments brought to eight the number of persons charged in connection with the finding of forged signatures on petition sheets. The petition effort, to put the bond issue on the Nov. 7 ballot, was dropped after the forgeries were disclosed.

A group of teen-agers reported they were paid to write in names while working in offices of a public relations firm handling the drive.

Consumer Beef Prices Down In September

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers paid less for beef last month because of a slide in cattle prices and the first dip in middleman markups since last June, the Agriculture Department said today.

The September retail price of beef, a key indicator in the cost of living, was slightly less than $1.13 per pound on an all-cut basis, including hamburger as well as steak.

That was almost three cents less than in August and 4.4 cents cheaper than the record high in July. In August, however, the price spread—the markup—from cattlemen to consumers was a record 44.8 cents per pound.

Last month, according to a "market basket" report on U.S. farm-produced food, the middleman share for beef was 43.3 cents per pound, a decline of 3.3 per cent in a month.

Statistically, however, the middleman beef margin was 20.3 per cent more than last June and 14.9 per cent more than a year ago.

All grocery store foods averaged 0.1 per cent less in September but 5.6 per cent more than a year earlier.

Last week the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported takehome food in September rose 0.1 per cent from August. But USDA officials said their report covered only food produced on American farms and did not include imported items and seafood products.

The BLS report also covers meat prices only for the first week in a month, while the USDA surveys beef and pork for the entire month.

Broken down further, the USDA report showed that of the average retail beef price of just under $1.13 per pound, the "farm value" was 69.6 cents in September, down from 71.0 in August and the summer peak of 77.5 last June and July when cattle prices were higher.

Farm value is not the price producers get for cattle, but it is their share of what consumers pay at retail stores. It requires nearly 2.3 pounds of live steer, for example, to make one pound of supermarket beef.

A total market basket of food items, theoretically enough to feed a typical family for a year, cost an annual rate of $1,320 in September, down $2 from the record highs reported for July and August.

Of the total, the farm share was $539 in September, up from $530 in August. The middleman share for transportation, processing and merchandising was $781 in September, down $11 from $792 reported the month earlier.

Mrs. Criglar Elected As Vice-Chairman Of Sickle Cell Task Force

MALDEN — Mrs. George Criglar of Malden was elected vice chairman and Mrs. Dora Shurn of Malden was elected secretary of the task force for sickle cell anemia Tuesday night at a meeting of the Bootheel Regional Planning Commission and Econic Development Council.

Jack Burke of Charleston, administrator of the Mississippi County Health Department, was previously named chairman of the task force by the Rev. Wallace Ellinger, Chairman of Bootheel Comprehensive Health Council.

The group of 23 persons compiled material about present services for sickle cell anemia in the Bootheel area. It was reported that all hospitals in the area do routine testing when black patients are admitted. Head Start and Health Start programs are just beginning a testing program for their students.

Also reported was that money is available for sickle cell anemia through the state health department, but, at this time, the department is not prepared to say how it will be allocated.

The main plan of action of the task force is an educational program which will work through clubs and civic groups. Thirteen people have volunteered to receive training at the Memphis Sickle Cell Anemia Center on Nov. 18 in order to present programs to local clubs and organizations who seek information on the disease.

Those attending the training session will be Dr. Pin H. Pu of Kennett, Mrs. Marilyn Cox of Dexter, Clay Gardner of Hayti, Burke, Bill Dillon of New Madrid, Mrs. Crigler, Miss Celly Ackerman, Mrs. Grace Drain, and Mrs. Shurn of Malden and Mrs. Vesta Ruffin, Dr. Joe Blanton, Dr. Jean DuPont and Mrs. Sue Marble of Sikeston.

The next meeting of the task force will be held Nov. 27 at Sikeston Activity Center, where plans will be discussed for groups to volunteer to take the test for sickle cell anemia.

American Tourist Arrested; Linked With Nixon Bomb

TEL AVIV (AP) — A 22-yearold American tourist has been arrested for investigation in connection with the murder-bymail bombs addressed to President Nixon, Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Defense, Secretary Melvin R. Laird, the state radio reported today.

The broadcast identified the suspect as Dennis Feinstein and said he came to Israel as a visitor several weeks ago.

Police gave no immediate details of the case.

Israeli explosives experts on Wednesday defused three deadly envelopes addressed to Nixon, Laird and Rogers after they were found in a post office in the Israeli frontier town of Qiryat Shemona near the Lebanese border.

Feinstein was ordered jailed for 15 days by a magistrates court in Safed. He told the court he had nothing to do with the letter bombs, packed in ordinary blue air-mail envelopes and addressed to Washington.

Police told the court the American was picked up by an Israeli soldier in the Lebanese frontier zone "in suspicious circumstances."

The chief spokesman at Israel's national police headquarters said police were making public no details of the case. He declined to give the suspect's home address in the United States.

McGovern Claims Same Peace Terms Now As Four Years Ago

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern is dealing warily with the prospect of a pre-election Vietnam settlement, while contending that President Nixon can get no peace terms now that were not "there for the asking four years ago."

Indeed, McGovern told one campaign rally Thursday that the currently proposed peace terms are little different from those on which the French got out of Indochina 18 years ago.

That, and the vow that he, as president, would force the Saigon government out of the way of an immediate settlement, constitutes the McGovern campaign offensive on the peace issue, one that was the cornerstone of his campaign in the first place.

McGovern said in response to a question that he did not want to describe the settlement drive as timed for election-eve impact.

"Whatever their motives, if this administration can bring off a settlement of this war, they'll have my full support and cooperation in any effort that can lead to peace," he said.

Word from the White House Thursday that "peace is at hand" produced no basic change in the campaign stance McGovern adopted earlier in the week amid initial reports of a possible settlement.

He said then, and he says now, that he is for it, that it should have come years ago, and that the political effect is not important.

"I don't think we ought to be trying to count votes when bodies are involved ....

"There is no evidence that I have yet been able to see that convinces me there is any new circumstance leading to peace now that was not there for the asking four years ago," he told a campaign rally in Sacramento Thursday night. "We can only mourn four more years of war ...."

McGovern said any intransigence on the part of Nguyen Van Thieu, the South Vietnamese president, should be brushed aside.

"He said the other day that he was not going to let us dictate a peace settlement to him," McGovern said. "I say to Gen. Thieu, if I were president of the United States you, Mr. Thieu, would not dictate war to us."

There was no evident atmosphere of political crisis in the McGovern camp, in contrast to that four years ago when Nixon and his strategists were confronted just before the 1968 election with word that then President Lyndon B. Johnson was suspending the bombing of North Vietnam as part of a broadened effort to negotiate peace.

Nixon at that time issued a statement suggesting and then denying that it was a politically inspired move to help the Democrats hold the White House.

Pair Indicted For Forging On Petitions

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Two more persons were indicted Thursday by a circuit court grand jury on charges of helping to forge signatures on petitions of the illfated $730 million transportation bond issue.

One was James E. Meyer, secretary-treasurer of the St. Louis Labor Council, who headed up the drive for signatures. He and Ron Perisho, a computer operator, pleaded not guilty during an arraignment and were released on their own recognizance.

Judge Theodore McMillian set Dec. 11 as a trial date. The indictments brought to eight the number of persons charged in connection with the finding of forged signatures on petition sheets. The petition effort, to put the bond issue on the Nov. 7 ballot, was dropped after the forgeries were disclosed.

A group of teen-agers reported they were paid to write in names while working in offices of a public relations firm handling the drive.

Consumer Beef Prices Down In September

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers paid less for beef last month because of a slide in cattle prices and the first dip in middleman markups since last June, the Agriculture Department said today.

The September retail price of beef, a key indicator in the cost of living, was slightly less than $1.13 per pound on an all-cut basis, including hamburger as well as steak.

That was almost three cents less than in August and 4.4 cents cheaper than the record high in July. In August, however, the price spread—the markup—from cattlemen to consumers was a record 44.8 cents per pound.

Last month, according to a "market basket" report on U.S. farm-produced food, the middleman share for beef was 43.3 cents per pound, a decline of 3.3 per cent in a month.

Statistically, however, the middleman beef margin was 20.3 per cent more than last June and 14.9 per cent more than a year ago.

All grocery store foods averaged 0.1 per cent less in September but 5.6 per cent more than a year earlier.

Last week the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported takehome food in September rose 0.1 per cent from August. But USDA officials said their report covered only food produced on American farms and did not include imported items and seafood products.

The BLS report also covers meat prices only for the first week in a month, while the USDA surveys beef and pork for the entire month.

Broken down further, the USDA report showed that of the average retail beef price of just under $1.13 per pound, the "farm value" was 69.6 cents in September, down from 71.0 in August and the summer peak of 77.5 last June and July when cattle prices were higher.

Farm value is not the price producers get for cattle, but it is their share of what consumers pay at retail stores. It requires nearly 2.3 pounds of live steer, for example, to make one pound of supermarket beef.

A total market basket of food items, theoretically enough to feed a typical family for a year, cost an annual rate of $1,320 in September, down $2 from the record highs reported for July and August.

Of the total, the farm share was $539 in September, up from $530 in August. The middleman share for transportation, processing and merchandising was $781 in September, down $11 from $792 reported the month earlier.

Mrs. Criglar Elected As Vice-Chairman Of Sickle Cell Task Force

MALDEN — Mrs. George Criglar of Malden was elected vice chairman and Mrs. Dora Shurn of Malden was elected secretary of the task force for sickle cell anemia Tuesday night at a meeting of the Bootheel Regional Planning Commission and Econic Development Council.

Jack Burke of Charleston, administrator of the Mississippi County Health Department, was previously named chairman of the task force by the Rev. Wallace Ellinger, Chairman of Bootheel Comprehensive Health Council.

The group of 23 persons compiled material about present services for sickle cell anemia in the Bootheel area. It was reported that all hospitals in the area do routine testing when black patients are admitted. Head Start and Health Start programs are just beginning a testing program for their students.

Also reported was that money is available for sickle cell anemia through the state health department, but, at this time, the department is not prepared to say how it will be allocated.

The main plan of action of the task force is an educational program which will work through clubs and civic groups. Thirteen people have volunteered to receive training at the Memphis Sickle Cell Anemia Center on Nov. 18 in order to present programs to local clubs and organizations who seek information on the disease.

Those attending the training session will be Dr. Pin H. Two Nixon Campaign Groups Fail To File Statements

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two committees which have funneled large amounts of money into President Nixon's re- election campaign have failed to file registration statements in apparent violation of federal law.

Examination of hundreds of campaign financial reports pouring into the General Accounting Office also shows a $25,000 loan to Democratic Presidential Candidate George McGovern from a secretary who refused to say how a secretary could afford such a loan or whether the money was hers.

The Republican Support Committee of Los Angeles loaned $161,500 to the California Finance Committee to Re- elect the President on Sept. 13, reports to the GAO show.

The Executive Club of the Republican Party of New Jersey is listed as contributing $57,000 in the Sept. 1 to Oct. 16 period to 20 Nixon committees on the state level.

Another $12,000 was contributed to four national Nixon committees during the same period by William B. Colsey III who lists the same Trenton, N. J., post office box as the Executive Club.

Neither registration statements nor reports of over-$100 contributors could be found for the Republican Support Committee or the Executive Club in GAO records going back to April 7 when a new election law requiring full campaign finance disclosure went into effect.

Under the new law any political committee which anticipates receiving or making contributions or loans exceeding $1,000 to a national candidate during the calendar year must register with the GAO within 90 days of organizing.

It also must report quarterly and on the 15th and 5th days before a primary or general election all expenditures, loans or contributions over $100.

Colsey, a Mt. Holly, N. J., lawyer, could not be reached by telephone. A New Jersey newspaper quoted Colsey last June as saying the Executive Club received contributions from business and professional leaders.

The address for the Republican Support Committee was listed as in care of Asa Call at 523 W. 6th St., Los Angeles. Call, who personally gave Nixon $10,000 earlier this year, is chairman of Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Volpe Ready To Release Funds; Could Mean Big Money For Highway Uses In Missouri

WASHINGTON (AP) — The announcement by Secretary of Tansportation John A. Volpe that he is prepared to release millions in federal highway funds from categorical restrictions could mean large sums for highways in Kansas and Missouri.

Volpe said Thursday that because of the failure of Congress to enact new legislation to finance the federal highway program he was prepared to:

—Release states from the categorical restrictions so that maximum use can be made of all funds which have already been authorized.

—Permit states to undertake interstate projects for which they can be reimbursed when new money is legislated.

Federal highway funds normally are obligated to states a year in advance.

A spokesman said that when $4.4 billion was made available last July 1 for obligation in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1974, specified amounts were set aside—as is normal—for particular programs such as interstate highways, traffic control, urban projects and primary and secondary roads.

Obligation authority of the states as of Oct. 1 included: Kansas 27.5 million; Missouri $64.8 million.

The available apportionments as of Oct. 1, from outstanding unobligated funds for the current year, included:

Kansas 34.3 million; Missouri $56.1 million.

St. Louis Strike Put Off

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A second strike, scheduled for today at the General Motors Assembly Division plant here, was postponed.

Local 25 of the United Auto Workers Union said it received word from national union leaders that talks were progressing and the strike deadline was being extended on a day-by-day basis.

A walkout was also set for today at the GM plant in Leeds, Mo., but there was no announcement it would be delayed.

Local 25, which represents about 8,500 workers, staged a three-day walkout two weeks ago over a work standards dispute. The union said consolidation of operations by the firm resulted in a big layoff and work speedup for assembly line workers.

Pounds Snaps Back In Trade

LONDON (AP) — The British pound lost more than two cents in a half-hour of hectic trading on the London foreign exchange today but then snapped back up as traders bought back cheap sterling to cover short sales.

The Bank of England also was said to have bought pounds to bring the pound back up from a record low of $2.3410.

The rush to sell sterling — dealers said the orders were coming from the Continent in million-pound lots — was sparked by the British government's failure to win the backing of trade unions and industry for a determined drive to halt inflation.

Moral Principles Seen As Solution To Perils

MEMPHIS— America is facing a great peril which can only be overcome if the moral principles in the Ten Commandments and the Sermon on the Mount are honored by this nation, Evangelist Billy Graham said here Wednesday.

"In my judgment, in spite of the euphoria of a temporary peace and growing economic prosperity, we still are facing great peril whoever wins this election," Dr. Graham said during the Wallace E. Johnson Prayer Breakfast at the Holiday Inn— Rivermont.

"This peril comes from moral decadence within; from a group of radical anarchists who would like to take over the country and the growing military might and dedication of enemies without..."

Dr. Graham said part of the problem is that there are so many segments of the population seeking total freedom at any cost which causes other citizens to lose some of their freedom daily because of fear. Suicide is our biggest student killer and loneliness is our biggest personal problem, he said.

"The news media shouts at us from morning until night about the possibilities of some Armaggeddon here or there and we get lonelier and lonelier...

"Without a faith to believe, we may be physically free but psychologically and spiritually we are in danger of becoming slaves— and in time this will soften us for the kill."

Dr. Graham said that despite almost everyone's desire to be free of someone or something, no one has total freedom.

"The American freedom has from its inception been based on law and this law has been rooted in a faith in a universal moral law given by God in the 10 Commandments and the Sermon on the Mount...The important thing is to balance freedom and law...This delicate balance...can only be maintained if there is a moral foundation to society on an individual basis."

There is a growing philosophy today that rejects every moral and ethical standard. It is based on total secularism and total materialism, he said.

"They want to remove the very name of God from our national life," Dr. Graham said. "They want to take God off our coins. They want to remove chaplains from the military forces. They have already taken the first step by getting rid of prayer from the school. The goal of the more extremist in this group is total anarchy and destruction of the American system..."

Communist countries, such as China, have adopted some of the moral principles on which this country was founded, he said. There has been a moral reverse and their countries have no drug or venereal disease problems.

But Dr. Graham said he still has faith that America will be changed.

"While our economic, political and spiritual problems are overwhelming, I can sense a shift, a turning of the tide," he said. "I see the youth awakening. More youth are turning to Christ. The campuses are no longer burning. There is a moral tide and the pendulum is beginning to swing back to the spiritual..."

FREEDOM UNDER AUTHORITY

Christians are told to "live as free men, yet without using your freedom as a pretext for evil." Yet at the same time they should "live as servants of God."

Conflicts between governmental leaders and their people are not new. The Bible provides many examples of such conflicts where struggles developed.

The Israelites suffered for 400 years in Egypt. They also made a mess of their tribal government and many of their kings were wicked.

Roman authorities and the early Christians were frequently at odds. Yet it was God's will that Christians find their place in society and seek to improve their governments.

In our rapidly changing world today the protests grow against authority of all kinds. Young people object to the "establishment" as they seek more freedom from college controls, censorship in the mass media, and dress codes.

These and similar debates will be studied for the next month. Much of our time will be concerned with how much liberty should we have and how much should be granted to others.

Some say the generation gap killed Jesus. The young prophet was resented by the old religious leaders, the "establishment" of His day.

Jesus ridiculed some of the religious laws of His day. He loathed their system of taxation and their public display of sacrifices. Later, however, Paul observed that every person ought to be subject to the governing authorities.

It was Paul's belief that the authorities were servants of God. He urged his followers to pay their taxes to the Romans and give them the proper respect due their office.

How does one determine if the authorities are servants of God? The men who established our nation were considered traitors and law-breakers by the British. If we had lost the Revolutionary War, Washington, Jefferson, Hamilton, Adams and others would have been hanged.

Today we debate the role of conscientious objectors. We even find writers questioning whether real democracy is possible.

George Bernard Shaw once said, "Unless human beings make the State their servant, it soon becomes the master." In this presidential year voters have their chance to determine who will be the master and who will be the slave.

By Christian freedom we mean the freedom to be completely under God. It means we should obey our rules within the bounds of conscience.

At the same time we must admit that the tension is growing between individual freedom and increasing government control. Everyone is subject to some kind of earthly authority.

It may be dangerous to say that a Christian might feel free to disobey unjust laws. Such measures might be unjust to him, yet just to the rest of the world.

Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. once said that "Any law that uplifts human personality is just. Any law that degrades human personality is unjust."

Mass demonstrations seldom have the long-time effect that petitions of protests and later elections have.

Good governments will encourage good conduct. For a stable society the authorities must be servants of God. Good conduct on the part of the people will glorify God. This, however, is easier to say than to do.

God's principles of good governmental relationships with the people have not changed. Youth's in their rebellion against unjust rules, are carrying on God's will. Freedom is difficult to obtain. It is more difficult to maintain.

(Based on outlines prepared by the Department of Christian Education, National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U.S.A., and used by permission.)

Homecoming Set For Nov. 5 At Wolf Island

WOLF ISLAND — The 38th annual homecoming at Wolf Island Baptist Church will be held Nov. 5.

The Rev. Edd Mayfield will be guest speaker and there will be special singing from the local church, as well as visiting churches. Lunch will be served at 12:30 and afternoon services will begin at 1:30.

The Rev. Don Edwards is pastor, Jim Blumenberg is song leader and Debbie Austin is pianist.

Morning services will begin at 10 a.m., and the day's worship should culminate at 4 p.m.

The adult training union class will sponsor a Halloween party Friday night at 7:30. Food and refreshments will be served. There will be games and prizes for all age groups.

Vernon Brothers To Sing In East Prairie

EAST PRAIRIE— An evening of inspirational music and testimony with the Vernon Brothers of television fame will be presented at 7 p.m. Sunday at the Christian Church.

The Vernon Brothers, from Springfield, are all ministers of the gospel and graduates of Ozark Bible College in Joplin.

Bill and Bob are twins, B.J. is just younger and Don is the youngest of the brothers. Bill sings first tenor, Bob second tenor, Don baritone and B.J. sings bass.

All four brothers are married. Their wives, whose voices correspond with their husbands, also form a very fine womens quartet. All eight of the Vernons join their voices to form an octet that brings inspiration to listeners.

Each brother has successfully served in the field of ministry, as well as general evangelistic work in all parts of the country.

Today the brothers are engaged in the work of Christian Television Mission, a non- sectarian, non- profit television ministry sponsored by the Christian Churches and Churches of Christ.

The brothers are featured on a television program called "Homestead, U.S.A.", which has been viewed on more than 150 television stations in America, as well as in a half- dozen foreign countries.

Q—What play is based on the Bible's story of Job?

A—Archibald MacLeish's "J.B." a poetic drama.

EAST PRAIRIE— An evening of inspirational music and testimony with the Vernon Brothers of television fame will be presented at 7 p.m. Sunday at the Christian Church.

The Vernon Brothers, from Springfield, are all ministers of the gospel and graduates of Ozark Bible College in Joplin.

Bill and Bob are twins, B.J. is just younger and Don is the youngest of the brothers. Bill sings first tenor, Bob second tenor, Don baritone and B.J. sings bass.

All four brothers are married. Their wives, whose voices correspond with their husbands, also form a very fine womens quartet. All eight of the Vernons join their voices to form an octet that brings inspiration to listeners.

Each brother has successfully served in the field of ministry, as well as general evangelistic work in all parts of the country.

Today the brothers are engaged in the work of Christian Television Mission, a non- sectarian, non- profit television ministry sponsored by the Christian Churches and Churches of Christ.

The brothers are featured on a television program called "Homestead, U.S.A.", which has been viewed on more than 150 television stations in America, as well as in a half- dozen foreign countries.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Polls show that most Missourians—even Democrats—like President Nixon.

But George McGovern is not totally forgotten. You can get McGovern campaign stickers at the state Democratic headquarters here.

But most of the state campaign's time and effort is going to Edward L. Dowd, the Democratic candidate to succeed outgoing Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, leaving office after eight years, the maximum.

"I think we could win anyway, but I'm pleased with the Nixon support and I'll have to admit it will help me," says state Auditor Christopher S. "Kit" Bond, trying to become Missouri's first Republican to be elected governor since 1940.

In that year, Democrat Franklin D. Roosevelt carried the state for President but Republican Forrest C. Donnell won the governor's race by 3,000 votes.

Donnell had a Democratic lieutenant governor, Frank Gaines Harris. Political observers are speculating that Bond, also, might have a Democratic lieutenant governor if he wins Nov. 7.

Critics of McGovern cite the Eagleton affair—his dropping of Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton of Missouri as his running mate after saying he was 1,000 per cent behind him—and McGovern's stand on amnesty, welfare and defense spending.

The Committee to Re-elect the President recently said McGovern's defense cuts would mean a loss of $83 million a year in payrolls at four Missouri military installations, counting both military and civilian cutbacks.

Both Nixon and Bond are showing well in polls conducted by the Kansas City Star and the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. The border state of Missouri is a swing state but even in traditionally Democratic southeastern Missouri, both Nixon and Bond are ahead in the poll.

The polls also show Democrat Jack J. Schramm of University City with at least a 10 per cent lead over Republican William C. Phelps of Kansas City in the lieutenant governor's race. Both are state representatives.

In the treasurers race, former Democratic state Rep. James I. Spainhower was leading state Rep. George Parker, R-Columbia, and in the secretary of state race, incumbent Democrat James C. Kirkpatrick, 68 years old Monday, has a whopping lead over Harold Huehle, the Republican Cape Girardeau collector who hasn't let his wheel chair interfere with his campaigning.

Kuehle, 36, whose nickname is "Wheels," has been confined to a wheelchair because of a high school football injury.

Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth, a Republican, showed a sizeable lead over Democrat Rep. James E. Spain, 37, of Bloomfield.

Missouri will have about 2 million voters, about half of whom are Democrats. Nixon carried the state by 20,000 votes in 1968 while Hearnes won reelection overwhelmingly.

Dowd's strength is in the St. Louis metropolitan area, where he is president of the St. Louis Board of Police Commissioners and circuit attorney. His TV advertisements dwell on the law and order theme.

Republicans have been attacking Dowd for spending $149,000 more than the contributions he reported. Missouri law allows contributions 90 days before the election to be kept secret.

Democrats have tried to make an issue of Bond's youth and the fact that he lived outside Missouri between 1958-67.

Bond, 33, won a state Supreme Court test of the 10-year residency law because the court ruled that education and job preparation — he worked in Atlanta and Washington, D.C. law offices — kept him outside the state.

Democrats also have publicized the fact that Bond paid motor vehicle taxes and income taxes from a Mexico, Mo., trust fund outside of the state while he claimed Missouri was his permanent residence.

Eight Democratic congressmen appear safe for re-election. Few have spoken out for McGovern.

In the 4th District of west central Missouri, Rep. William J. Randall, 62, says he is "180 degrees from George McGovern." He is opposed by Appleton City auto dealer Raymond E. Barrows, a Republican.

The Vietnam War is a key issue in the 9th District of northeastern Missouri, where incumbent Democrat William L. Hungate, 49, is an opponent of the war.

His 56-year-old opponent, former state Sen. Robert L. Prange of St. Louis County thinks more congressmen should support Nixon in his handling of the war.

The 6th District of northwestern Missouri and the 7th of southwestern Missouri will have new congressmen. Democrat W. R. Hull Jr. of the 6th and Republican Durward G. Hall of the 7th decided not to run for re-election.

Cattel rancher Jerry Litton, a Democrat from Chillicothe, and Republican Russell Sloan, former Northwest Missouri State College football coach, are running close in the 6th.

Litton has campaigned on behalf of farmers and Sloan has emphasized support for youth.

Gene Taylor of Sarcoxie, former Republican national committeeman, is opposed by Democrat William Thomas, a high school biology teacher, in the heavily Republican 7th.

The governor's race has attracted by far the most attention.

Bond and Dowd appear to agree, more than they disagree, on most key issues.

Bond says the campaign will cost him between $400,000 and $500,000. Dowd's will cost between $175,000 and $200,000, he says. Both favor campaign spending reforms.

Both are against state aid to private schools.

Both feel the new state Department of Transportation—to be created in 1974—should have control over development of mass transit, but Dowd believes it should have control over all forms of transportation, including highways.

Both favor construction of additional bridges across the Missouri River near St. Louis and Kansas City.

Both favor keeping schools under local control. If the U. S. Supreme Court orders a ceiling on local property tax support, Bond says he would investigate the possibility of a statewide property tax, but would first look toward expanding the foundation program allotment of state taxes for public schools, now at $340 million.

Dowd would consider using some of the federal revenue sharing money to expand support of schools where local financing is restricted in poor areas.

Missouri has 605 school districts and a state Department of Education study has recommended doing away with 120 elementary districts. Dowd opposes that because local control would be diffused. Bond noted that there has been rapid consolidation without any state-enforced consolidation.

Dowd opposes any change under which control of junior colleges would be taken from the department of education and the local JC districts. Bond favors placing them under control of a higher education coordinating board.

Providing jobs for welfare workers in a form of public works project is the responsibility of the federal government, Dowd believes, and he says the federal government should take over more of the welfare load.

Bond says the state could do a better job of administering the programs but major changes will be controlled by the federal government. Bond says he thinks the state should appropriate funds for day care centers for welfare mothers who are looking for jobs or taking training courses.

Bond is against building a new maximum security prison to replace the one in Jefferson City, but says the state should move toward a system of regional correctional facilities near metropolitan areas where inmates would have a better chance at job rehabilitation.

Dowd also favors smaller institutions around metropolitan areas.

Both feel the board of probation and parole should be expanded to give counselors more time to spend with inmates.

Missouri has 55,000 state employes, 3,000 of whom are under the patronage system, meaning they serve at the pleasure of department heads and are not protected by a tenure law.

Bond has made a big issue of patronage. Dowd says he favors putting all state employes under a merit system, but gradually.

Dowd points out that bond and Danforth have never asked the legislature to pass a law putting their offices under the merit system.

"On the contrary," Dowd says, "after Mr. Bond was elected auditor a year and a half ago, he fired many, many people."

Bond says that "on the day I take office, I will retain and hire people on the basis of their ability.

"The patronage system, as it has operated in the past, is a spils system where persons are awarded jobs on the basis of political recommendations rather than on the basis of their ability."

Bond's office has 80 employes, 18 of whom are Democrats.

The Republican candidate says Missouri does not need a tax increase because of a surplus "due to the miscalculation by the executive branch in preparing the budget for this year."

Dowd agrees that no tax increase is necessary, and whereas Bond would make education the No. 1 priority with revenue sharing funds, Dowd would make aid to senior citizens his No. 1 goal.

Bond favors a modified nofault insurance program whereby the insurance company would make a direct reimbursement of up to a maximum, such as $3,000 or $5,000.

Dowd said he was "very concerned" that a person insuured for life might not be able to sue to compensate for future lost wages under a no-fault plan.

On attitudes toward minority groups, Dowd said the number of black policemen in St. Louis increased fom 4 per cent to 12 per cent of the 2,000-member force in the four years he was president of the police board.

Bond has one black accountant in a supervisory position and four blacks in maintenance jobs.

Both favor the Equal Rights for Women Amendment.

Both favor a statewide criminal investigation unit. Dowd would consider it an arm of the highway patrol, Bond proposes a separate unit to be located in the department of public safety.

On consumer affairs, Bond would beef up the consumer protection division of the attorney general's office. Dowd would make sure consumers are represented on state boards, specifically the public service commission, which regulates the state's utilities.

What's The Law?

The Case Of The Spinach Quarterback

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Nobody loved a can of spinach more than George, not even Popeye the Sailor. On any given Sunday he was known to down at least one or two cans as he watched a football game on television. One Sunday, however, his favorite gastronomic delight threw him for a complete loss. Scrambling through the leafy greenery like a squad of quarterbacks was a swarm of worms.

Horrified at the sight, George's stomach reversed field and he became extremely ill. Upon recovering, he lined up against the owner of the supermarket from whom he had purchased the spinach and sued him for damages.

"As far as I'm concerned," he told the judge, "the early bird who catches the worm is welcome to it. But as for people, food purchased at a supermarket must be fit for human consumption and a can crawling with worms ain't."

"It sure is," answered the supermarket owner. "Worms are eaten by people all over the world. What's more, they're considered a delicacy. And if George got sick, it was purely a case of mind over matter. Worms, cergainly, are fit for human consumption."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit George to collect for his illness?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that it's apparently true that such creatures as worms, grasshoppers, snails and the like are acceptable to certain tribes of American Indians as delicious morsels of food. It is also apparently true that canned Mexican worms grace the shelves of many delicatessens and, in certain swank social levels which few of us ever reach, roasted snails are available with trays of hor d'oeuvres at predinner cocktail parties.

However, concluded the judge, for the masses who have moved ahead of the Indians but who have not yet reached the snail set, such invertebrates as worms and snails are generally frowned upon as totally unwholesome and unfit for human consumption.

Archie And Edith Try 'Swinging'

NEW YORK (AP) — Archie Bunker & Co. are drawn from the hit British series, "Till Death Us Do Part." That title is based on the last promise a couple makes before the preacher declares them married.

Keep this in mind Saturday night. Because Archie and Edith Bunker are being asked to violate their marriage vows and, to paraphrase the old song, change partners and swing.

"All in the Family" is an unlikely forum in which to explore the phenomena of wifeswapping, but, by neddies, the show has gone and done it. And with taste, yet.

Now this definitely is the year television's ancient no-go areas — lesbianism, homosexuality, venereal disease — have been opened to the viewing public. But wife-swapping?

It's such a topical newcomer that when Carroll O'Connor went on NBC's "Tonight" and warned it was coming up on his show, the entire studio audience had just one reaction: "Oooooooh!"

But they needn't worry. Saturday's show is a hard-hat morality play. It pits the traditional values of Bunkerdom against those of a middle-aged mod couple who claim they saved their marriage through "swinging."

Both sides get together because Edith is innocent. She finds a copy of "Now Family" magazine in the subway and starts browsing, in the magazine's swap section. She doesn't know about that kind of swap.

A fun-loving "mature, lonely couple" is advertising that they'd like to meet a similar couple "to swap good times." Edith answers the ad and invites them over to the house.

A few scenes later the doorbell rings. Well-dressed Curtis and Ruth Rempley (Vincent Gardenia and Rue McClanahan) burst into the Bunkers' life with the cry, "Here we are!"

Naturally, they befuddle Archie. When Edith explains that she answered their personal ad, he tries to make the best of it. He offers them drinks. Curtis declines with a leer: "It dulls the senses."

The Rempleys don't smoke, either. They do get a severe case of the giggles when a puzzled Archie says, "Yez don't smoke, yez don't drink — what do yez do for fun?"

In the course of events, the Bunkers learn what the score is. And Archie hits the roof: "Swinging? Is that what you call it?"

"Well, what do you call it?" Curtis demands.

"Communism!" roars Archie. "You're undermining the nation!"

"I'll have you know I went to the Republican convention!" his guest retorts

It's a funny confrontation that neatly makes the point that "swingers" aren't a breed that can be spotted at 20 paces; most don't outwardly differ from the average couple next door.

As far as Archie is concerned, their way of life is a bummer. He orders the Rempleys from his home. They slink out of his life, a sad, lonely couple that tried to stay together by playing apart.

You Won't Believe This But....

MEREDITH, N.H. (AP) — John Smith of Meredith was afraid to tell police there was a hippopotamus on his porch at 3 o'clock this morning.

No one, he thought, is going to believe a call about a hippo in New Hampshire from somebody named John Smith.

But it wasn't a prank.

"I guess I was about the first guy to get chased across his own deck at three o'clock in the morning in his underwear by a hippopotamus," he said.

The 450-pound baby hippo escaped Wednesday from the Animal Forest Park, a nearby tourist attraction, and led police and trainers from the farm on an extended chase.

The first report of the loose hippo came from a resident of the Weirs Beach section of Laconia. By the time police arrived, the hippo was gone and the next call came from Smith, who told the sheriff's office: "There's a strange, vicious animal on my porch and I would like to have him removed."

Sure enough, the deputies thought the call was a prank. However, a check revealed the animal had made its way to a pond and was wallowing there without any inclination to leave.

At that point the authorities left the recovery job to the hippo's trainers, who set about recapturing the animal today.

May Install Replay At Stadiums

NEW YORK (AP)— One of life's eeriest feelings exists only in the mind of the pro football fan who consistently watches the game on television.

Get him a free ticket, trundle him off to the stadium and the first thing he'll say after a big play is "something's not right here." There's no instant replay.

The fan should blame his unease on Ampex Corp., whose replay recorder has revolutionized television coverage of sports in less than five years.

Many sports fans think of "instant replay" as simply a videotape slowed to a snail's pace. Wrong. The Ampex version is a polished metal disc that can record up to 30 seconds of action: the action then is played back at variable speeds or just "frozen" momentarily.

The disc, developed by Ampex executive Charles Steinberg, originally was used for holding specific bits of computer data.

Ampex officials say about 120 of their replay machines are now in use around the country by networks and local television stations.

ABC uses two of the machines for its pro football coverage. On occasion, the machines show that the referee's call apparently or obviously is dead wrong.

There is talk of installing giant replay screens in football stadiums- one already is in use at Kansas City and another is in the preliminary stage at Los Angeles.

The Prayer from the Upper Room

The light shines on in the dark, and the darkness has never mastered it. (John 1:5, NEB)

PRAYER: O God, who gives love and understanding to all Your creatures, so fill our hearts with the spirit of giving and sharing that we may be helpful today to someone who needs help. In Jesus' name we pray. Amen.

SUMP PUMP PROTECTS "BASEMENT" AGAINST FLOOD DAMAGE

There was a time when the "basement" was where you found the heating plant and an accumulation of useless things that no one wanted to throw away.

Not any more, the Plumbing- Heating- Colling Information Bureau points out. Today's so- called basement is more apt to be the family room, utility room or dad's workshop as well as a place for storage.

This means that the basement must be protected at all times against flooding, both for health reasons and to prevent damage to valuable equipment.

The device to do the job is a sump pump or cellar drainer. It's installed in a pit or sump, and when water in the pit reaches a predetermined level, a float switch automatically starts the pump. It continues to operate until all the water has been drained out. Shutoff also is automatic.

Sump pumps come in different types and sizes, in a range of prices. Homeowners should consult a plumbing contractor about the right choice of pump, keeping in mind that it pays to buy maximum protection by purchasing top- quality equipment.

FIRE IN THE EMBERS
by Burt Hirschfeld
(Avon J141/$1.50
509 pp.)

FIRE IN THE EMBERS si the final volume in Burt Hirschfeld's spectacularly successful "Fire Island" series, all Avon originals. The first, FIRE ISLAND, had 800,000 copies in print in less than two years; the second, CINDY ON FIRE, had 800,000 copies in print in less than one year.

FIRE IN THE EMBERS, is the story of Mike Birns, a writer, divorced and disillusioned with the sophisticated singles scene. A victim of years of self-indulgence with women and gambling, Mike is struggling to write a serious book and to have a serious love relationship. He runs a desperate race against time and the old, easy temptations. Burt Hirschfeld evokes both the passions of the man and the world he moves in -- from Fire Island to Hollywood to New York -- with consummate skill.

"Hirschfeld's quality is unique. He handles situations and dialogue with deft brilliance, slicing into lives and minds with the brilliance of a surgeon."

--Jack Hoffenberg, author of A TIME FOR PAGANS and SOW NOT IN ANGER

"Burt Hirschfeld has done for the compulsive gambler what THE LOST WEEKEND did for the alcoholic. FIRE IN THE EMBERS is a solidly constructed, vividly written chronicle of the twilight world of gambling and show biz from Fire Island to Hollywood's television jungle, from the neon battlefield of Las Vegas to Manhattan's swinging East Side. It's one dazzling novel."
-- Edwin Corley, author of SIEGE and THE JESUS FACTOR

"The third in the "Fire Island" trilogy of good, strong, sensuous novels, and it will not disappoint any of the 800,000 readers who made the previous two successful."

Bill Sponsor Gets Caught In Own Trap

PITTSBURGH (AP)— Richard S. Schweiker, R— Pa., a sponsor of legislation requiring the screening of passengers before they board commercial airplanes, found himself in the middle of a search.

Schweiker was preparing to get on a plane at Philadelphia on Tuesday when something in his briefcase triggered the alarm on an electric scanner.

"I experienced a sense of comedy," Schweiker said upon arrival here, "because I felt here was the one person in 200 million who had introduced a bill for this thing and I get trapped."

Schweiker was removed from the boarding line and his briefcase was searched by Allegheny Airline officials before he finally was allowed to get on the plane.

A small mirror in the brief case apparently set off the alarm.

What's The Law?

The Case Of The Spinach Quarterback

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Nobody loved a can of spinach more than George, not even Popeye the Sailor. On any given Sunday he was known to down at least one or two cans as he watched a football game on television. One Sunday, however, his favorite gastronomic delight threw him for a complete loss. Scrambling through the leafy greenery like a squad of quarterbacks was a swarm of worms.

Horrified at the sight, George's stomach reversed field and he became extremely ill. Upon recovering, he lined up against the owner of the supermarket from whom he had purchased the spinach and sued him for damages.

"As far as I'm concerned," he told the judge, "the early bird who catches the worm is welcome to it. But as for people, food purchased at a supermarket must be fit for human consumption and a can crawling with worms ain't."

"It sure is," answered the supermarket owner. "Worms are eaten by people all over the world. What's more, they're considered a delicacy. And if George got sick, it was purely a case of mind over matter. Worms, cergainly, are fit for human consumption."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit George to collect for his illness?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that it's apparently true that such creatures as worms, grasshoppers, snails and the like are acceptable to certain tribes of American Indians as delicious morsels of food. It is also apparently true that canned Mexican worms grace the shelves of many delicatessens and, in certain swank social levels which few of us ever reach, roasted snails are available with trays of hor d'oeuvres at predinner cocktail parties.

However, concluded the judge, for the masses who have moved ahead of the Indians but who have not yet reached the snail set, such invertebrates as worms and snails are generally frowned upon as totally unwholesome and unfit for human consumption.

FROM ONE TO FIVE . .

you can count it on one hand—but one to five in years is a long time. A lot can happen in five years and being out of circulation for those five could be a real bummer. It could happen you know . . . just by doing something stupid . . . like SHOPLIFTING! A compact . . . a ring or spark plugs . . . they could cost you five years of your life. That isn't exactly a fair trade, is it?

So the next time you think of picking up something for nothing . . . THINK ABOUT IT . . . is it worth 5 years? We doubt it!

THE SILENT CRIME!

FROM ONE TO FIVE . .

you can count it on one hand—but one to five in years is a long time. A lot can happen in five years and being out of circulation for those five could be a real bummer. It could happen you know . . . just by doing something stupid . . . like SHOPLIFTING! A compact . . . a ring or spark plugs . . . they could cost you five years of your life. That isn't exactly a fair trade, is it?

So the next time you think of picking up something for nothing . . . THINK ABOUT IT . . . is it worth 5 years? We doubt it!

SHOPLIFTING IS STEALING — AND STEALING IS A CRIMINAL ACT, PUNISHABLE AS SUCH!

Polled Voters Give Bond Lead In St. Louis Area Counties

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Voters in seven counties adjacent to St. Louis give Republican gubernatorial candidate Christopher "Kit" Bond an 18.3 per cent lead over Democratic opponent Edward L. Dowd in a poll released today by the St. Louis Globe-Democrat and Kansas City Star.

The papers talked with 646 persons in Franklin, Gasconade, Jefferson, Lincoln, Montgomery, St. Charles and Warren counties.

While Bond led in the top state job, voters polled favored a Democrat, Jack Schramm, for lieutenant governor, the papers said. But the poll got almost a third undecided responses in the lieutenant governor race between Schramm and William Phelps.

The poll found Democrats James Kirkpatrick and James Spainhower ahead for secretary of state and treasurer. Republican John Danforth was leading in his bid for re-election as attorney general against James Spain.

Democratic presidential candidate George McGovern trailed President Richard M. Nixon by around 37 per cent.

Economy Index Rose Again In September

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government index of leading economic indicators rose again in September, pointing to a continued expansion of the nation's economy, the Commerce Department said today.

The Department also reported that the August increase in the index, originally put at 2.2 per cent, was revised upward to 2.6 per cent, making it the largest monthly percentage increase in more than a decade.

The September advance was 0.4 per cent. But the significance of the smaller increase is debatable. Many economists believe that the index presages ups and downs in the economy rather than measures its strength.

Five of the eight indicators available for September rose.

Rising were indicators for the average work week, new orders for durable goods, contracts and orders for equipment, building permits and the prices of industrial materials.

annual payroll of $400,000 would pump an additional $2 million into the city's economy.

"The patrol has received the finest cooperation and enjoyed the greatest hospitality from the citizens of Poplar Bluff," Hockaday said.

"Only after long consideration of the need to serve the greatest number of citizens of Missouri in the most efficient manner was the decision made to select the Sikeston site."

11 Patients Treated

Eleven accident patients were treated Thursday in the emergency room of Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Donald Woods, 17, Sikeston, sprained right foot at school; Lonnie Hill, 39, Sikeston, injured right ankle and left wrist in fall; Don Limbaugh, 40, Sikeston, punctured right foot while at work; Dwayne Kelso, 10, Matthews, cut right leg in fall on piece of farm equipment.

Robert Cox, 10 months, Charleston, received second-degree burn on right arm when touched to stove; Ronald McWhiter, 4, Sikeston, cut head in fall; and Edna Cummins, 40, Sikeston, received bruises of the neck when hit.

Trio Held At Charleston

CHARLESTON — Slydester Smith, 21, Jessie Hull, 19, and a juvenile all of Charleston, are being held in Mississippi County jail for investigation of breaking, entering and stealing.

According to Deputy Sheriff Mike Baughman, an undetermined amount of money was taken from coin-operated machines in Stader's coin laundry on East Marshall Street about 12:20 a.m. today.

Baughman said Mississippi County authorities were alerted by Sikeston police that the three suspects were in Sikeston attempting to change coins into bills.

The three were arrested when they returned to Charleston by city police officers Willie Jarett and Willis Cox.

The first machine gun had 20 barrels and was made over 300 years ago.

IT'S A BOMB ... Bernie and Richland High School basketball players seem to be shying away from the basketball during action in the Parma junior varsity tournament Thursday night. Bernie defeated Richland, 51-46, to move into tonight's consolation final against Parma, a 62-32 victim of Lilbourn.

LHS In Finals

PARMA-- Coach Bob Phelps' Lilbourn Panthers go after their fourth straight Parma Junior Varsity Invitational basketball tournament title tonight at 8 when they engage New Madrid county rival-- Matthews Pirates.

Lilbourn muscled its way into the title picture with a 62- 32 decision over the host Pirates Thursday night after opening tournament play Tuesday with a rousing 109-39 win over Bernie.

Matthews moved into the championship final Tuesday with its 53- 33 win over Richland.

Bernie squeezed into the consolation final with a 51-46 win over Richland Thursday night and will battle Parma tonight at 6:30.

Joe Stuver ripped in 20 points and Dale Hartle added 13 to pace the Mules past Richland. Bernie took advantage of 21 Rebel fouls for 17 points at the free throw line to record the win, pulling away in the fourth quarter after holding a slim, one— point lead.

Richland out— scored the Mules from the field, 21—16, but made only two chances at the free throw line. Roosevelt Johnson and Raymond Reeves paced the Reb offense with 12 and 11 markers respectively.

Lilbourn again relied on its out— court accuracy to record a victory. Tuesday night the Panthers hit 54 field goals in its 109 point total and Thursday had 30 field markers while cashing only two free throws.

Coach Wayne Early's Pirates stayed close to the quick, sharp— reboudning LHS cagers through the first half, but constant errors plagued the freshmane basketballers and the Panthers cashed in easy baskets time after time to build its final margin.

Frankie Robinson and Ernest McFerren pumped in 14 and 10 points respectively in leading the LHS offense. Darrell Ramsey and Ricky Barnes led Parma's scoring with 11 and 10 points respectively.

Seabaugh Leads Cape Central Win

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Junior quarterback Bill Seabaugh ran for three touchdowns and passed for another as the Central High Tigers romped to their eight straight win of the season, thumping Kennett 47-0 at Houck Stadium Thursday night.

Reserve running back Steve C. Taylor put the Bengals on the scoreboard in the first period on runs of six and 87 yards. Taylor filled in for the injured Paul Schermann, who saw limited action while nursing a bruised thigh from last week's game with Sikeston.

Seabaugh passed to Willie Colon for a second quarter TD covering 14 yards, then ran across for the next three scores from 10, 47 and two yards out.

David Gross ended the Tigers' scoring with a one-yard plunge in the fourth quarter as the Bengals recorded their second shutout of the season.

Jeff Hutton kicked five of seven extra-point attempts.

Schermann added 44 yards on four carries as the Tigers rolled up 376 yards on the ground and 47 through the air.

Cape held a 17-7 edge in first downs and lost one fumble while the Indians yielded three bobbles.

Good Start For Guessers

Sports Corner By Ron Jaynes

Well, this week's Daily Standard panel of prognosticators has started out on the right foot, as all 10 members took the Cape Girardeau Central Tigers to remain undefeated ... And they did just that Thursday night, blanking the Kennett Indians 47-0 ... although the panel figured the score 37-6.

We are one faithful member short this week ... what happened to Rovina Ralph's guesses?

Joining the swami this week are Rook Forbis, Jerry Gentry, Bobby Gentry, Eddie Smart, John Greer, Danny Summerfield, Tony Ford, Ron Hornback and the mystery Shadow guesser.

Polar Bluff and Malden are unanimous selections of the panel to record wins this week. The Mules are 28-7 favorites over Charleston and Malden is a 21-6 pick over East Prairie.

The shadow has tabbed Cairo, Ill., as an upset winner over Scott City, taking the score as 26-0, while the remaining members of this week's elite have the Rams by a slim 21-13 margin.

Doniphan, Hayti and Dexter missed by one vote being unanimous picks. Doniphan is a Perryville and St. Thomas Academy tied among the panel members, whose average score came out in favor of the Perryville Pirates by a 21-19 margin. I went with PHS.

Caruthersville also tied with Luxora, Ark., although the average favored the Tigers by a 26-21 score. I'll stay with the Southeast Missouri squad.

Only two faithful guessers have favored the Sikeston Bulldogs in their battle at Jackson tonight ... Of course, I've stayed with SHS and so has the Shadow ... The Indians are 19-12 picks.

21-6 pick over South Pemiscot, with one panel member going with a tie and another with a Bulldog win. Hayti is a 28-6 favorite over Gideon and Dexter a 35-0 selection over Chaffee.

Old man weather will take his toll tonight, if the rain continues ... and it could play havoc with tonight's guesses.

SEMS Hosts Lincoln U.

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Southeast Missouri State University can accept nothing short of a victory Saturday when the Indians return to football action against the Lincoln University Tigers.

The Indians, who had an open date last week, need a win to keep their MIAA hopes alive. A 21-14 loss to Northeast Missouri State Oct. 14 gave the Tribe a backseat position in the league race.

Lincoln is the only undefeated and untied team in the conference. Last week the Tigers edged Northwest Missouri State 12-10 on a muddy field.

Indian Head Coach Tom Thrower feels that a win against the Tigers would put his team back into the conference title picture. The Indian chief describes the Tigers as "the undisputed conference leader."

Thrower has nothing but words of high regard for Saturday's foe. He believes Lincoln's biggest offensive asset is quarterback James Lang.

Lang has passed for almost 700 yards in his team's five games this year and is also a very fine runner, according to Thrower. The Indian coach said of Lang, "He is probably as good a running quarterback as there is in the United States."

Overall, Thrower says, "Lincoln is very quick and has a good, solid, running game and an outstanding passing attack." Defensively, the Tigers also offer impressive credentials, as they have held their five opponents to less than a one-yard- per-carry average. According to Thrower, the Lincoln defense is the quickest the Indians have faced and most of the Tigers' defensive players have been starters two or three years.

The Indian boss feels the Tribe will have to score at least two touchdowns and says, "The lower the score, the better chance we have." This puts a big burden on the Indian defensive unit.

Lincoln Coach Dwight Reed has a good deal of respect for Southeast Missouri State and says he is stikcing with his pre-season prediction that the Indians will win the conference.

Reed has an injury problem this week with several key members out of action and others on the doubtful list.

Among those injured is Lang, who has been hampered by a bad hand. However, he will start Saturday.

Chandler Williams, one of the Tigers' top receivers, is the only starter definitely out of action for Saturday.

Saturday's game will be at Houck Stadium in Cape Girardeau with the kickoff set for 1:30 p.m.

Writers' Views

COLUMBIA-- One Chicago sportswriter last week previewed the Mizzou—Notre Dame football game, quite understandably, as imminent carnage.

His pre- game story described Missouri as the "sacrificial lamb"-- and tabbed the upcoming "bloody ceremony" as "the most one- sided affair since Moses drowned the Philistines in the swirling Red Sea."

The writer's game story, following Missouri's 30- 26 upset, carried this epitaph as his sign- off paragraph.

"The loss, which no doubt will knock Notre Dame out of the top 10, was commemorated by one distraught fan who waited an hour until the stadium was emptied of all but press- box occupants. Then he walked to the 50- yard line, and, in grand ceremony, relieved himself. He left without a murmur from the ghosts of Notre Dame.

Another sportswriter, Bob Broeg of the St. Louis Post— Dispatch, was more prone to praise than bury the Tigers in his post- game column.

Broeg's colorful wrap—up' "Even though they've got more than a growl-- and the second half of the season might be most interesting-- the 1972 Tigers probably won't be remembered as one of Ol' Mizzou's best teams.

"But just as long as Oakland will remember its first pennant and world championship with Connie Mack's transplanted team, Missouri will recall the Saturday in '72 when the muddy meek inherited 100 yards of the country's best-known earth, the gridiron that Knute Rockne built."

ESSEN, Germany — Americans Arthur Ashe, Cliff Richey and Bob Lutz registered victories in the West German pro tournament and advanced to the quarterfinals.

EDINBURGH, Scotland — Brenda Kirk of South Africa defeated New York's Julie Heldman 6-4, 1-6, 6-4 in the second leg of the Dewar Cup tournament.

Seabaugh Leads Cape Central Win

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Junior quarterback Bill Seabaugh ran for three touchdowns and passed for another as the Central High Tigers romped to their eight straight win of the season, thumping Kennett 47-0 at Houck Stadium Thursday night.

Reserve running back Steve C. Taylor put the Bengals on the scoreboard in the first period on runs of six and 87 yards. Taylor filled in for the injured Paul Schermann, who saw limited action while nursing a bruised thigh from last week's game with Sikeston.

Seabaugh passed to Willie Colon for a second quarter TD covering 14 yards, then ran across for the next three scores from 10, 47 and two yards out.

David Gross ended the Tigers' scoring with a one-yard plunge in the fourth quarter as the Bengals recorded their second shutout of the season.

Jeff Hutton kicked five of seven extra-point attempts.

Schermann added 44 yards on four carries as the Tigers rolled up 376 yards on the ground and 47 through the air.

Cape held a 17-7 edge in first downs and lost one fumble while the Indians yielded three bobbles.

Good Start For Guessers

Sports Corner By Ron Jaynes

Well, this week's Daily Standard panel of prognosticators has started out on the right foot, as all 10 members took the Cape Girardeau Central Tigers to remain undefeated ... And they did just that Thursday night, blanking the Kennett Indians 47-0 ... although the panel figured the score 37-6.

We are one faithful member short this week ... what happened to Rovina Ralph's guesses?

Joining the swami this week are Rook Forbis, Jerry Gentry, Bobby Gentry, Eddie Smart, John Greer, Danny Summerfield, Tony Ford, Ron Hornback and the mystery Shadow guesser.

Polar Bluff and Malden are unanimous selections of the panel to record wins this week. The Mules are 28-7 favorites over Charleston and Malden is a 21-6 pick over East Prairie.

The shadow has tabbed Cairo, Ill., as an upset winner over Scott City, taking the score as 26-0, while the remaining members of this week's elite have the Rams by a slim 21-13 margin.

Doniphan, Hayti and Dexter missed by one vote being unanimous picks. Doniphan is a Perryville and St. Thomas Academy tied among the panel members, whose average score came out in favor of the Perryville Pirates by a 21-19 margin. I went with PHS.

Caruthersville also tied with Luxora, Ark., although the average favored the Tigers by a 26-21 score. I'll stay with the Southeast Missouri squad.

Only two faithful guessers have favored the Sikeston Bulldogs in 21-6 pick over South Pemiscot, with one panel member going with a tie and another with a Bulldog win. Hayti is a 28-6 favorite over Gideon and Dexter a 35-0 selection over Chaffee.

their battle at Jackson tonight ... Of course, I've stayed with SHS and so has the Shadow ... The Indians are 19-12 picks.

Old man weather will take his toll tonight, if the rain continues ... and it could play havoc with tonight's guesses.

SEMS Hosts Lincoln U.

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Southeast Missouri State University can accept nothing short of a victory Saturday when the Indians return to football action against the Lincoln University Tigers.

The Indians, who had an open date last week, need a win to keep their MIAA hopes alive. A 21-14 loss to Northeast Missouri State Oct. 14 gave the Tribe a backseat position in the league race.

Lincoln is the only undefeated and untied team in the conference. Last week the Tigers edged Northwest Missouri State 12-10 on a muddy field.

Indian Head Coach Tom Thrower feels that a win against the Tigers would put his team back into the conference title picture. The Indian chief describes the Tigers as "the undisputed conference leader."

Thrower has nothing but words of high regard for Saturday's foe. He believes Lincoln's biggest offensive asset is quarterback James Lang.

Lang has passed for almost 700 yards in his team's five games this year and is also a very fine runner, according to Thrower. The Indian coach said of Lang, "He is probably as good a running quarterback as there is in the United States."

Overall, Thrower says, "Lincoln is very quick and has a good, solid, running game and an outstanding passing attack." Defensively, the Tigers also offer impressive credentials, as they have held their five opponents to less than a one-yard- per-carry average. According to Thrower, the Lincoln defense is the quickest the Indians have faced and most of the Tigers' defensive players have been starters two or three years.

The Indian boss feels the Tribe will have to score at least two touchdowns and says, "The lower the score, the better chance we have." This puts a big burden on the Indian defensive unit.

Lincoln Coach Dwight Reed has a good deal of respect for Southeast Missouri State and says he is stikcing with his pre-season prediction that the Indians will win the conference.

Reed has an injury problem this week with several key members out of action and others on the doubtful list.

Among those injured is Lang, who has been hampered by a bad hand. However, he will start Saturday.

Chandler Williams, one of the Tigers' top receivers, is the only starter definitely out of action for Saturday.

Saturday's game will be at Houck Stadium in Cape Girardeau with the kickoff set for 1:30 p.m.

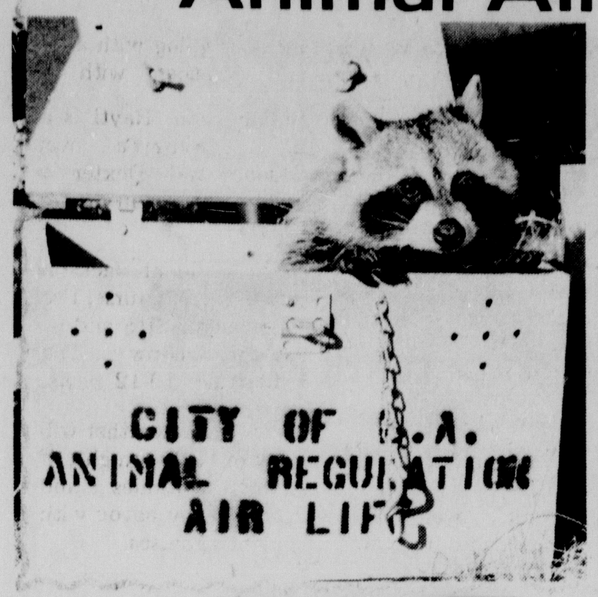
Animal Air Lift



High over Los Angeles, right, a helicopter flies a strange cargo to a new home away from the urban sprawl. A program initiated by the city with the support of government and private conservation agencies, Animal Air Lift is a rescue operation for wildlife. Once a week, animals rounded up in back yards, alleys and sometimes swimming pools are picked up in box-cages, left, and flown to the Los Angeles National Forest to be released, below left. Each lift carries 12 to 16 small animals, birds—such as the pheasant held by animal Shelter Supervisor Wes Mason, below right—and even an occasional snake (nonpoisonous). It is a fresh start for wild creatures dispossessed by ever-encroaching civilization.

Shall We Dance?

That's apparently what the gal and the pussycat had in mind at the Magic City Cat Show in Miami Beach, Fla. At least until . . . Ouch, you oaf! If you can't bugaloo, at least stay off a lady's toes.

HELPING HANDS are always welcome when a fellow is learning to ski but not quite sure of himself yet. The fellow in this case has a lot to look forward to. He is Prince Johan Friso, second in line to the Dutch throne, and he ends up in the good hands of mother, right, Crown Princess Beatrix of the Netherlands, on a royal family vacation at Lesch, Austrian winter sports resort.

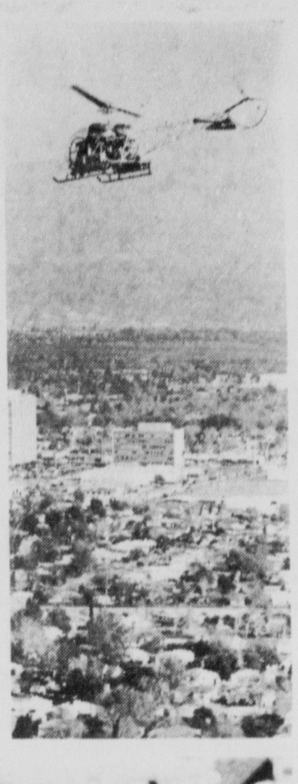
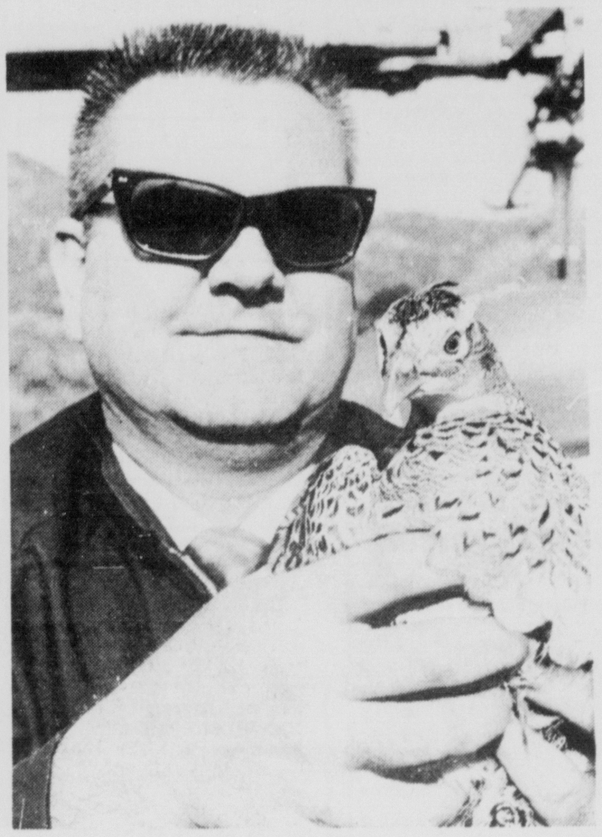
Animal Air Lift

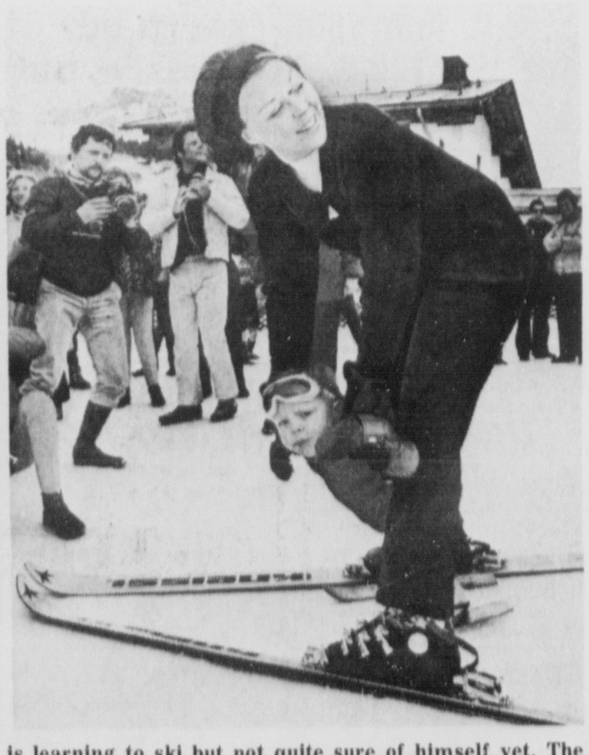
High over Los Angeles, right, a helicopter flies a strange cargo to a new home away from the urban sprawl. A program initiated by the city with the support of government and private conservation agencies, Animal Air Lift is a rescue operation for wildlife. Once a week, animals rounded up in back yards, alleys and sometimes swimming pools are picked up in box-cages, left, and flown to the Los Angeles National Forest to be released, below left. Each lift carries 12 to 16 small animals, birds—such as the pheasant held by animal Shelter Supervisor Wes Mason, below right—and even an occasional snake (nonpoisonous). It is a fresh start for wild creatures dispossessed by ever-encroaching civilization.





Shall We Dance?

That's apparently what the gal and the pussycat had in mind at the Magic City Cat Show in Miami Beach, Fla. At least until . . . Ouch, you oaf! If you can't bugaloo, at least stay off a lady's toes.



HELPING HANDS are always welcome when a fellow is learning to ski but not quite sure of himself yet. The fellow in this case has a lot to look forward to. He is Prince Johan Friso, second in line to the Dutch throne, and he ends up in the good hands of mother, right, Crown Princess Beatrix of the Netherlands, on a royal family vacation at Lesch, Austrian winter sports resort.

OUTDOOR DRINKING FOUNTAIN KEEPS YOUNGSTERS OUT OF KITCHEN

With summer coming, the endless patter of little feet treking into the kitchen for a drink of water soon will be going strong.

Children always promise not to track in dirt or wake up baby by banging the door, but somehow they forget. Besides, their little friends need drinks of water too, and whoever heard of a group of children ALL remembering to wipe their feet or close the door quietly?

What's the answer? For a growing number of young families, it's an outdoor drinking fountain, according to the Plumbing - Heating-Cooling Information Bureau. Many families that enjoy outdoor living -- including those who have no youngsters -- have water conveniences installed on the patio. They consist of a fountain, hot and cold running water and an entertainment sink, with storage space beneath for charcoal and other barbecue equipment.

Outdoor water makes food preparation easier, and it simplifies the cleanup job after a meal. The cost of the installation is less than you might think, the Bureau says. A plumbing contractor will be glad to give you an estimate.

Criticism Leads To Crackdown On Hospitalization Insurance Ads

WASHINGTON (AP) — A wave of criticism against mailorder hospital insurance has led to a proposed nationwide crackdown on alleged deceptive advertising of policies.

The National Association of Insurance Commissioners (NAIC) has ordered the drafting of new advertising regulations for adoption by state regulators. They are designed to meet complaints that many persons, the poor and elderly in particular, have been misled in buying the policies designed to supplement basic hospital insurance with extra cash.

The insurance companies involved deny any intention to deceive in their advertising.

Insurance departments in 19 states already have instituted or proposed curbs of varying degree on companies selling supplemental health insurance through the mail. Sanctions range from individual suspensions and fines to across-theboard advertising restrictions affecting all companies.

Joe B. Hunt, the Oklahoma insurance commissioner, told state citizens recently to "beware of buying two-bit mail-order insurance."

Karl Herrmann, the Washington commissioner, halted the advertising of three leading companies for a time this year, saying: "There is too much false, misleading and deceptive advertising to purchase 'Mickey Mouse' policies in this state.

"There ought to be a basic threshold to prevent the sale of policies with benefits so low and so remote they are of no value," he said.

The three companies said they resolved their Washington difficulties within a few days or weeks and are again doing business in the state.

They are Union Fidelity Life Insurance of Philadelphia, Bankers Life and Casualty of Chicago, and National Liberty Corp. of Valley Forge, Pa., which sells its National Home health plans through two subsidiaries.

The hospitalization policies under fire typically offer benefits of $15 to $40 a day at a cost of between $50 and $100 a year. By comparison, hospitalization charges are approaching $100 a day.

The policies are advertised in newspaper spreads, Sunday supplements, direct-mail brochures and on television.

State regulators criticize the ads for headlining monthly or maximum benefits but playing down exclusions, waiting periods and limitations on payment for pre-existing illnesses.

Drafting of a new national advertising code was spurred by the state regulatory actions; news stories and Senate hearings on commercial health insurance; the rising volume of mail-order ads; and the temporary suspension of this type of advertisement by some newspapers while they formulated their own codes of acceptance.

F. Joseph O'Regan, a principal drafter of the new NAIC code, said it is designed to curb these advertising practices, among others: endorsements by prominent persons without identification of their financial links to the company; offers of free or cut-rate premiums in the first month; "puffing of daily benefits into more impressive monthly amounts;" phony deadlines for enrollment; and phrases that "cast negative features of the policies in a positive light."

O'Regan said the code will be submitted for approval to the NAIC convention in December. Individual states may then adopt the new regulations.

Four states this year have taken steps, or announced plans, to go beyond advertising regulation and set standards of content for the mail-order hospital policies.

Florida, for example, intends to require that companies return at least 65 cents in benefits from every premium dollar after the third policy year. Nevada has set the figure at 60 cents.

Currently, the mail-order supplemental hospitalization plans return about 50 cents in benefits for every $1 of premium. By comparison, Blue Cross and some commercial group policies return about 96 cents.

California and Washington have announced intentions to set minimum benefits for all health policies sold in the two states.

Tightened mail-order advertising rules have taken effect, or are being prepared, in New Jersey, Florida, Pennsylvania, Kansas, Ohio, Nevada, California, Iowa, New York, West Virginia, Michigan, Maine and Georgia.

Nine states have fined or taken other action against individual companies for their ads. Singled out for regulatory attention has been National Liberty, largest in the industry, and its ads featuring a testimonial by TV personality Art Linkletter.

The Florida insurance department fined a National Liberty subsidiary $20,000 and suspended its license six months for alleged deceptive advertising and failure to register Linkletter as an insurance agent in the state. A spokesman for the company said National Liberty accepted the penalty but "we do not admit guilt."

"Whenever we are asked by a department to conform to new regulations, we do comply," said the spokesman, Gerald Beavan. "We do not fight the departments."

The company nonetheless registered premium growth in the first six months this year 84 per cent better than the comparable 1971 period. The company said the six months were "the best in the history of National Liberty Corp. in terms of growth in revenues and earnings."

Why has National Liberty been singled out for particular regulatory attention?

"In this business we are the largest," said Beavan. "We are the most visible. Thirdly, we use Mr. Art Linkletter.

"And Art Linkletter is a household word," he said. "And you can always get your name in the paper if you attack Art Linkletter."

Schools Can Withhold Grad's Lifetime Teaching Certificate

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A Missouri state college or university can issue a bachelor of science degree without granting a life teaching certificate for Missouri, an attorney general's opinion said today.

The opinion, requested by State Commissioner of Education Arthur L. Mallory, said the life teaching certificate could be withheld if the candidate "does not present evidence of good moral character."

The student in question had fulfilled his academic requirements. Mallory asked if it would be possible to grant the degree without granting authorization to teach in Missouri public schools.

The opinion by Asst. Atty. Gen. D. Brook Bartlett quoted a state law saying "no person shall receive or hold any certificate who does not present evidence of good moral character."

However, Bartlett said, the Department of Education should take every precaution to ensure that the person in question gets a fair hearing and has an opportunity to cross-examine adverse witnesses.

In another opinion on teachers, Bartlett held that a guidance counselor could not be dismissed because he had not been hired for a sixth consecutive year at a Clark County school.

The person in question had been employed as a fulltime teacher in the district for five years after having been employed four years in other districts.

He was told he could not be hired this year because the district could not afford his salary. The opinion was requested by Pros. atty. J. William Holliday of Clark County.

In October of 1970, the attorney general's office held that a teacher must be rehired for six straight years in the same district to achieve permanent status.

But Bartlett pointed out that under Missouri law, the Board of Education must waive one year of probationary employment if the teacher has been employed in any one district for two consecutive years.

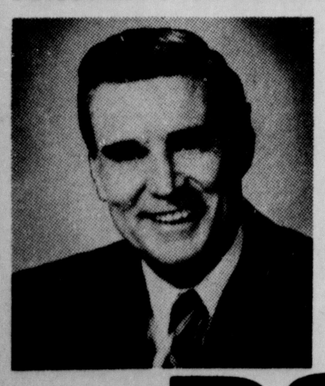
How Do YOU Feel About

More Taxes?

"I'm absolutely opposed to any form of tax increase." That's how Ed Dowd feels about a tax increase. He also says "While my opponent has made several different tax increase proposals, I believe more efficiency in government will give us all the money we need now. Let's make sure we're doing the best with what we have before we go asking for more." If you feel the same way about tax increases, then Ed Dowd is your man for Missouri's Governor.



Sure, the people of Missouri want a change. But we all know a change for change's sake isn't the answer. The real answer lies with a mature man of Ed Dowd's unquestioned good character. The son and grandson of policemen . . . a father who understands . . . a man who didn't inherit a thing except an honest respect for the working man, a compassion for those less fortunate and a sincere willingness to help. We can trust Ed Dowd to do the right thing for all the people. Be sure November 7. Vote for Ed Dowd, Democrat for Governor.

With summer coming, the endless patter of little feet treking into the kitchen for a drink of water soon will be going strong.

Children always promise not to track in dirt or wake up baby by banging the door, but somehow they forget. Besides, their little friends need drinks of water too, and whoever heard of a group of children ALL remembering to wipe their feet or close the door quietly?

What's the answer? For a growing number of young families, it's an outdoor drinking fountain, according to the Plumbing - Heating-Cooling Information Bureau. Many families that enjoy outdoor living -- including those who have no youngsters -- have water conveniences installed on the patio. They consist of a fountain, hot and cold running water and an entertainment sink, with storage space beneath for charcoal and other barbecue equipment.

Outdoor water makes food preparation easier, and it simplifies the cleanup job after a meal. The cost of the installation is less than you might think, the Bureau says. A plumbing contractor will be glad to give you an estimate.

Criticism Leads To Crackdown On Hospitalization Insurance Ads

WASHINGTON (AP) — A wave of criticism against mailorder hospital insurance has led to a proposed nationwide crackdown on alleged deceptive advertising of policies.

The National Association of Insurance Commissioners (NAIC) has ordered the drafting of new advertising regulations for adoption by state regulators. They are designed to meet complaints that many persons, the poor and elderly in particular, have been misled in buying the policies designed to supplement basic hospital insurance with extra cash.

The insurance companies involved deny any intention to deceive in their advertising.

Insurance departments in 19 states already have instituted or proposed curbs of varying degree on companies selling supplemental health insurance through the mail. Sanctions range from individual suspensions and fines to across-theboard advertising restrictions affecting all companies.

Joe B. Hunt, the Oklahoma insurance commissioner, told state citizens recently to "beware of buying two-bit mail-order insurance."

Karl Herrmann, the Washington commissioner, halted the advertising of three leading companies for a time this year, saying: "There is too much false, misleading and deceptive advertising to purchase 'Mickey Mouse' policies in this state.

"There ought to be a basic threshold to prevent the sale of policies with benefits so low and so remote they are of no value," he said.

The three companies said they resolved their Washington difficulties within a few days or weeks and are again doing business in the state.

They are Union Fidelity Life Insurance of Philadelphia, Bankers Life and Casualty of Chicago, and National Liberty Corp. of Valley Forge, Pa., which sells its National Home health plans through two subsidiaries.

The hospitalization policies under fire typically offer benefits of $15 to $40 a day at a cost of between $50 and $100 a year. By comparison, hospitalization charges are approaching $100 a day.

The policies are advertised in newspaper spreads, Sunday supplements, direct-mail brochures and on television.

State regulators criticize the ads for headlining monthly or maximum benefits but playing down exclusions, waiting periods and limitations on payment for pre-existing illnesses.

Drafting of a new national advertising code was spurred by the state regulatory actions; news stories and Senate hearings on commercial health insurance; the rising volume of mail-order ads; and the temporary suspension of this type of advertisement by some newspapers while they formulated their own codes of acceptance.

F. Joseph O'Regan, a principal drafter of the new NAIC code, said it is designed to curb these advertising practices, among others: endorsements by prominent persons without identification of their financial links to the company; offers of free or cut-rate premiums in the first month; "puffing of daily benefits into more impressive monthly amounts;" phony deadlines for enrollment; and phrases that "cast negative features of the policies in a positive light."

O'Regan said the code will be submitted for approval to the NAIC convention in December. Individual states may then adopt the new regulations.

Four states this year have taken steps, or announced plans, to go beyond advertising regulation and set standards of content for the mail-order hospital policies.

Florida, for example, intends to require that companies return at least 65 cents in benefits from every premium dollar after the third policy year. Nevada has set the figure at 60 cents.

Currently, the mail-order supplemental hospitalization plans return about 50 cents in benefits for every $1 of premium. By comparison, Blue Cross and some commercial group policies return about 96 cents.

California and Washington have announced intentions to set minimum benefits for all health policies sold in the two states.

Tightened mail-order advertising rules have taken effect, or are being prepared, in New Jersey, Florida, Pennsylvania, Kansas, Ohio, Nevada, California, Iowa, New York, West Virginia, Michigan, Maine and Georgia.

Nine states have fined or taken other action against individual companies for their ads. Singled out for regulatory attention has been National Liberty, largest in the industry, and its ads featuring a testimonial by TV personality Art Linkletter.

The Florida insurance department fined a National Liberty subsidiary $20,000 and suspended its license six months for alleged deceptive advertising and failure to register Linkletter as an insurance agent in the state. A spokesman for the company said National Liberty accepted the penalty but "we do not admit guilt."

"Whenever we are asked by a department to conform to new regulations, we do comply," said the spokesman, Gerald Beavan. "We do not fight the departments."

The company nonetheless registered premium growth in the first six months this year 84 per cent better than the comparable 1971 period. The company said the six months were "the best in the history of National Liberty Corp. in terms of growth in revenues and earnings."

Why has National Liberty been singled out for particular regulatory attention?

"In this business we are the largest," said Beavan. "We are the most visible. Thirdly, we use Mr. Art Linkletter.

"And Art Linkletter is a household word," he said. "And you can always get your name in the paper if you attack Art Linkletter."

Schools Can Withhold Grad's Lifetime Teaching Certificate

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A Missouri state college or university can issue a bachelor of science degree without granting a life teaching certificate for Missouri, an attorney general's opinion said today.

The opinion, requested by State Commissioner of Education Arthur L. Mallory, said the life teaching certificate could be withheld if the candidate "does not present evidence of good moral character."

The student in question had fulfilled his academic requirements. Mallory asked if it would be possible to grant the degree without granting authorization to teach in Missouri public schools.

The opinion by Asst. Atty. Gen. D. Brook Bartlett quoted a state law saying "no person shall receive or hold any certificate who does not present evidence of good moral character."

However, Bartlett said, the Department of Education should take every precaution to ensure that the person in question gets a fair hearing and has an opportunity to cross-examine adverse witnesses.

In another opinion on teachers, Bartlett held that a guidance counselor could not be dismissed because he had not been hired for a sixth consecutive year at a Clark County school.

The person in question had been employed as a fulltime teacher in the district for five years after having been employed four years in other districts.

He was told he could not be hired this year because the district could not afford his salary. The opinion was requested by Pros. atty. J. William Holliday of Clark County.

In October of 1970, the attorney general's office held that a teacher must be rehired for six straight years in the same district to achieve permanent status.

But Bartlett pointed out that under Missouri law, the Board of Education must waive one year of probationary employment if the teacher has been employed in any one district for two consecutive years.

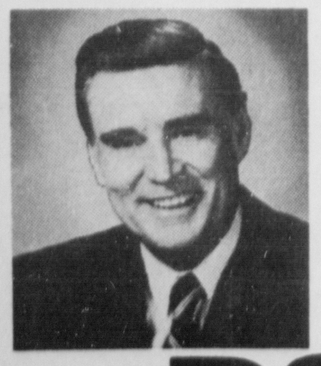
How Do YOU Feel About
More Taxes?

"I'm absolutely opposed to any form of tax increase." That's how Ed Dowd feels about a tax increase. He also says "While my opponent has made several different tax increase proposals, I believe more efficiency in government will give us all the money we need now. Let's make sure we're doing the best with what we have before we go asking for more." If you feel the same way about tax increases, then Ed Dowd is your man for Missouri's Governor.



Sure, the people of Missouri want a change. But we all know a change for change's sake isn't the answer. The real answer lies with a mature man of Ed Dowd's unquestioned good character. The son and grandson of policemen . . . a father who understands . . . a man who didn't inherit a thing except an honest respect for the working man, a compassion for those less fortunate and a sincere willingness to help. We can trust Ed Dowd to do the right thing for all the people. Be sure November 7. Vote for Ed Dowd, Democrat for Governor.
